HARPER SLAIN; 11 TAKEN IN KINNEY RAID

Officers Believe Dead Man Member Superior Holdup Gang—Companion Escapes Through Gunfire—$2,800 Currency Discovered—Four Omaha Women Among Those Arrested.

By IRVING PERLMETER.

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—A bleak hide-out in a ghost city near the Nebraska-Kansas line today had yielded one mortally wounded bank robber suspect, eleven other prisoners and $2,800 in currency.

A score of officers from three counties surrounded the house about 8 o'clock last night, ordered all occupants from the dwelling and wounded two men who ran a gauntlet of spitting guns. One man identified by officers as Francis Harper, 22, died in the Lutheran hospital here at 6:53 o'clock this morning. The other escaped. Two other persons drove up to the house about midnight and fled under another hail of bullets, some of which hit their automobile.

The group brought to the county jail here included six women and two children.

Abandoned Village.

The hideout was one of the only two houses in the abandoned railroad siding village of Kinney, 7 miles southeast of Wymore and 9 miles from the Kansas border. Sheriff Tom Dunn of Gage county who led the raid said he was certain Harper and the man who escaped were two of the four men who looted the Security National bank of Superior, Neb., Nov. 22 of $7,929. He expressed the opinion the two men who drove up at midnight and escaped were the other two.

The second wounded man was traced to Pickrell, Neb., and was believed headed for Omaha. He commandeered an oil transport truck, driven by George Siems, 29, of Beatrice, a mile east of Blue Springs, drove through the city of Beatrice, and then transferred to an automobile taken from Dr. Amesberry Lee of Pickrell about eight miles beyond Beatrice. He forced Dr. Lee out of the automobile near Pickrell.

Admitted Escape From Officers.

Nervous, shivering from cold and tired, the gunman held a .45 caliber automatic against Seims quaking ribs during the long ride in the oil transport, and freely admitted that he had just escaped from officers at Kinney.

Although he had run and crawled more than eight miles since eluding the officials, he noticed a slight wound in his left thigh for the first time while talking to Siems.

State Sheriff Fred Benton, who was among those who planned the raid but did not arrive until later, and other officials believed the speeding automobile which sped past the hideout at midnight was the car stolen from a taxi cab driver earlier in the evening at Falls City.

In the hideout, miles from traffic and urban population, officers found hundreds of dollars worth of fancy clothing and jewelry apparently belonging to four Omaha women, at least two of whom were friends of the suspects. One of the girls, who gave her name as Theola Giermann, 18, of 2873 Burt street, Omaha, said she was to marry Harper today at Marysville, Kas., and the gunman who rode with Siems told the truck driver that both he and his "pal" were to get married today. A radio, a guitar and several books of cowboy songs, and an elaborate layout of women's toilet articles presented a strange contrast in the dingy house.

Theola was the only one of the women who would comment on any of the evening's events. She nearly collapsed when an officer first told her that Harper was shot, but after that she pretended not to believe any of the reports and presented an outwardly gay appearance. None of the other Omaha women admitted being disturbed or even knowing any of the men involved. The other three Omaha women gave their names as Crystal Wilson, 25, of 608 North Sixteenth Jackson; Jean Carson, 22, 2612 Maple street; and Violet

HARPER WANTED IN CONNECTION WITH IOWA BANK HOLDUP

DES MOINES, Dec. 1—(AP)—The state bureau of investigation reported today that Francis Harper, fatally wounded by officers near Beatrice, was sought in connection with the Cumberland, Ia., bank robbery. Four men obtained $1,050 in the robbery of the Cumberland savings bank at Cumberland, Cass county, Sept. 7.

Several witnesses of the Superior bank robbery arrived in Beatrice Saturday afternoon to view the dead man and others taken in the Kinney raid. County Attorney Ernest Hubka was still undecided about holding an inquest.

JURY STILL OUT IN FRAHM CASE

Deliberate For Many Hours and Call For Two Exhibits.

OSHKOSH, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—The district court jury deliberating the first degree murder case against Fred Frahm of Sidney today examined a skull and a check the latter alleged to have been forged by the defendant, but the jurors had reported no verdict by 2 o'clock. Court attaches revealed the jurors stayed up all night in the hope of reaching an agreement.

District Judge Carter said he had not decided on any limit to the time they might deliberate. The jury received the case at 9:25 p. m., yesterday.

Fred, accused of killing his brother, John Frahm of Glendale, Ariz., six years ago, was held in county jail while the jury deliberated.

The check called for by the jury was alleged to have been cashed by Fred after his brother's disappearance. Fred served two years in prison after pleading guilty to forgery, but denied at the trial he signed his brother's name to the check.

The skull, a state exhibit, was alleged to have been taken from the body found in a shallow grave near here. State witnesses testified they believed the skull was John Frahm's.

June Knight, Actress, And Paul Ames Married

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—In her role of wife, June Knight, blonde movie actress, planned to leave today for New York with the husband she married yesterday, Paul S. Ames, former member of the New York stock exchange.

Miss Knight and Ames, whose brother, Stephen, is the husband of another movie star, Raquel Torres, appeared suddenly at the marriage license bureau yesterday and were married a short time later.

France Offers Germany Chance to Regain Saar

PARIS, Dec. 1 —(AP)— Foreign Minister Pierre Laval today publicly offered Germany a second chance to regain the Saar territory if the January 13 plebiscite favors remaining under League of Nations jurisdiction.

He told the chamber of deputies France was not opposed to a possible decision of the league council to give the Saar to Germany if after voting to continue under the league the Saarites later wish to return to Germany.

Arrested In Raid on Lonely Kinney House.

Below is the frame house in which officers recovered $2,800, believed to be part of the Superior bank loot.

THROWS INFANT INTO FURNACE

Young Thurston County Mother To Have Insanity Hearing.

PENDER, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—An insanity hearing will be held here late today for Mrs. Eldor Caspor of Rosalie who officers said threw her eight month old son into a furnace yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Caspor were questioned here today. Caspor told officers his wife ran out of the house wringing her hands and crying hysterically. He asked her what was the matter. Caspor said, and she told him she had thrown the boy in the furnace.

Caspor ran to the furnace and pulled the body from the flames. The child's body was charred badly.

The young couple live on a farm four miles from Rosalie.

Proud Father.

State Senator Cloyd L. Stewart of Clay Center, who last month won re-election, was prouder Saturday than he was last November 6. He wired The Star as follows:

"Thomas Stewart, whose middle name may be Jefferson, born this noon. Mother and baby and father doing nicely."

SUPREME COURT SETS HEARING ON TEST CASE

The Supreme court Saturday advanced for hearing at the session beginning January 21 the appeal of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. from an order of the state railway commission fixing a reduced depreciation rate for 1934. The case is looked upon as a test case to determine the jurisdiction of state commissions over interstate telephone utilities companies when intrastate matters are involved.

Siems Tells Of Unwilling Trip With Man Escaping Kinney Raid

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—George Siems described the man who boarded his oil truck after escaping officers in the Kinney raid as being five feet six inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds and of medium build. He told Siems he was in bed when Harper notified him that the house was surrounded. He hastily put on shoes, pants and shirt, but no socks or underwear and picked up a coat and vest which he threw away in the chase.

Siems grinningly related he asked no questions but the gunman volunteered the information saying, "You'll read about it in the newspapers anyway. I might as well tell you who I am." He took Siems' overcoat and ten of the 19 dollars in Siems' wallet. He started to take all the money but Siems begged for a little and won his point.

The man boasted he had plenty of money but that he had been forced to leave it behind. It was this remark reported by Siems to officers that spurred the new search for currency in the house at Kinney and resulted in the finding of the wad of greenbacks. Siems got rid of his passenger by saying he feared he was running out of gasoline.

After the "passenger" had been unsuccessful in flagging several passing cars, he ordered Siems to swing his long transport truck sideways across the road.

In this manner he stopped Dr. Lee. Only two newspapers were in sight in the house. Both bore eight column headlines telling of the slaying of George "Baby Face" Nelson in Illinois by federal officers.

Corn at 98 Cents.

Corn on the Lincoln markets stood at 98 cents a bushel Saturday, two cents above the price paid for the best grade of wheat. Farmers were not greatly elated over the near-dollar corn, however, because of the great need for feed. Agriculturalists say there is a considerable movement of corn in the state but most of it is from one farmer to another for feed.

NAVY ELEVEN DEFEATS ARMY ON SOGGY GRID

Downpour of Rain Sweeps Battleground at Philadelphia.

NOTABLES GET A HARD DRENCHING

Crowd of 80,000 Witnesses Annual Football Classic.

FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1—(AP)—Navy outfought Army today in the mud and whipped the Cadets, 3 to 0, for the first time since 1921 in the annual football battle between the rival service academies. A 19-yard field goal from placement, in the first period, by Slade Cutter, Navy's star tackle, furnished the margin of victory as a capacity crowd of 80,000 looked on.

FRANKLIN, FIELD, Philadelphia, Dec. 1 — (AP) — A terrific downpour of rain swept the battleground for the Army-Navy football game today and drenched most of the capacity crowd of 80,000 spectators huddled in the University of Pennsylvania stadium. The clouds unloaded a wind-swept torrent less than an hour before the kickoff was scheduled and turned the gridiron into a quagmire.

To save the gridiron from as much additional damage as possible, the parading brigade of midshipmen, as well as the cadet corps, from West Point, marched only around the sidelines. Bands blared bravely in the rain and mud, the tremendous crowd cheered enthusiastically and the uniformed contingents sloshed through the mud to midfield.

Notables Drenched.

Notables took their drenching impartially, along with the rest of the crowd, as the rain continued steadily.

A few minutes before gametime, there was only a slight drizzle blowing across the field and the heavier clouds seemed to have passed over.

In the exposed upper stands, as well as the uncovered lower stand sections, the crowd huddled under umbrellas, raincoats, newspapers and blankets. Less than a sixth of the crowd had any overhead protection but the spectators apparently came prepared to "take it" and showed every sign of sticking it out.

The starting lineups:

Army	Pos.	Navy
Shuler	LE	Dornin
Miller	LT	Lambert
Brearly	LG	Burns (C)
Clifford	C	Robertshaw
Stillman	RT	Cutter
Beall	RG	Morrell
Edwards	RE	Mandelkorn
Grohs	QB	Pratt
Buckler	LH	Borries
Grove	RH	T. King
Stancook (C)	FB	Clark

Officials: Referee, W. J. Crowell, Swarthmore; umpire, T. J. Thorp, Columbia; linesman, W. M. Hollenbeck, Pennsylvania; field judge, C. M. Waters.

FIRST PERIOD.

Army won the toss. Clifford kicked off and Bill Clark, Navy fullback, ran the ball back from a corner of the field to Navy's 22 before being forced out of bounds. Borries, after one crack at the line, skirted Army's left end, got into the clear and raced to Navy's 46. Army braced and Clark was forced to punt after Tom King was thrown for an 8-yard loss.

Grohs signalled for a fair catch on Army's 23. Buckler was smeared twice in attempts to run Navy's right end. Both teams were mud-covered and the gold helmets of the Cadets alone helped to identify the opposing ranks.

Buckler's punt from his own 15 soared into the wind and was downed on Navy's 47 by Bill Shuler, Cadet end.

Borries was stopped at the line of scrimmage by Stancook but then twisted off his own left guard for 5 yards before being

YOUTH KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

CCC Worker From Kansas Loses Life Near Trenton, Neb.

TRENTON, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Adair Teeters, 20, of Shields, Kas., was killed early today when struck by an automobile on the road near here.

Officers said Teeters was struck by a car owned by W. W. Powell of Trenton and occupied by his son, Dexter, and other parties.

Teeters, member of a CCC camp at Atwood, Kas., was reported to have been walking at the side of the road after getting out of a car in which he had been riding.

Officers from the Atwood camp were here today making an investigation and an inquest has been called for later in the day.

23 ARE SAVED FROM WRECKED LAKE VESSEL

Crew Makes Way Hand Over Hand on Line to Muskegon Breakwater.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Dec. 1—(AP)—Twenty-three members of the whaleback freighter Henry Cort's crew reached shore safely this morning, 11 hours after the ship struck the Muskegon harbor breakwater last night in a 60-mile gale.

Making their way to the breakwater, hand over hand, on a line shot to the freighter by coast guardsmen, the sailors fought their way over a mile of the wave lashed breakwater to shore.

All were exhausted and suffering from exposure. Some had to be assisted to shore, apparently injured.

So far as could be told, only 23 men were on the Cort when it struck.

The rescue of all of them was considered an amazing feat in view of the high sea that was running and the 60-mile gale.

The Cort, pounding against the rocky protuberance, seemed from

HOLD RITES FOR FATHER FANNING

Pontifical Requiem Mass With Bishop Kucera As Celebrant.

The impressive service of pontifical requiem mass and with his fellow priests of the diocese gathered within the sanctuary rail, funeral rites were held Saturday morning in St. Mary's cathedral for Rev. John William Fanning, with The Most Reverend Bishop Louis B. Kucera, D. D., as celebrant.

It was almost five months to the day since Bishop Kucera had ordained Father Fanning in the chapel of St. Elizabeth's hospital. Father Fanning, who was only 26 years old, died Friday following a month's illness and services were held Saturday in order that the body could be taken to his home parish church at Davenport, Ia., to lie in state until Tuesday when Bishop Kucera wil officiate at further services and at the rites at the family plot there, where the young priest's parents are buried.

Bishop Pays Tribute.

Speaking briefly following the mass Bishop Kucera paid a high tribute to Father Fanning in saying, "It is fitting that we gather here this morning to bid Father Fanning farewell and to thank God for the golden priest that he was." The bishop extended his personal sentiments of sympathy to Rev. J. J. Loughran of Ulysses whose assistant Father Fanning was, and to the people of that church whom the bishop said

Pending his commitment to the state penitentiary—scheduled for Saturday afternoon—C. C. Carlsen remained at the county jail in custody of Sheriff Claude Hensel through the noon hour.

Carlsen had asked earlier in the day that his imprisonment be delayed for a last minute conference with E. B. Perry, one of his attorneys. Perry arrived in town shortly after noon, but said he did not know whether he would see Carlsen during the day, but thought that Frank Peterson, his co-counsel on the case would visit their client. Perry said he contemplated an appeal to the Federal Circuit court of appeals on refusal of the application for Carlsen's freedom under habeas corpus proceedings.

The order of Federal Judge J. A. Donohoe of Omaha, refusing Carlsen's application for a writ of habaeas corpus, reached Clerk J. B. Nickerson of the Federal court office early Saturday morning. Nickerson notified the parties concerned at once.

Closes Last Avenue.

With Donohoe's ruling the last avenue through which Carlsen's commitment to the penitentiary for a 3 to 9 year term may be stayed is closed, according to Attorney General Paul Good. Good told Sheriff Hensel that there is now no legal bar to prevent him from taking Carlsen to the penitentiary.

Under the statutes, however, Sheriff Hensel may keep Carlsen in his custody for 30 days before carrying out the terms of the mit-

FRAZIER-LEMKE ACT CHALLENGED

Attorneys Argue In Federal Court Law Is Unconstitutional.

Two more attacks on the constitutionality of the Frazier-Lemke bankruptcy act were made in Federal court here Saturday morning before Judge Munger, who took both matters under advisement. The first cause was that of Joseph W. Kalina from Pawnee county and the second that of Frederick Thomas Rank of Saline county, in which the validity of the law was challenged three weeks ago.

The fundamental facts in both cases were nearly the same. A mortgage sale has been held, a deed issued, and a writ of ouster placed in the hands of the sheriff through the state courts. At the same time bankruptcy proceedings under the Frazier-Lemke act were pending in Federal court. Both debtors sought to enjoin the sheriffs from executing the writs and the hearing Saturday morning was ostensibly on that cause.

Make Four Claims.

Charles F. Barth of Seward, representing Sheriff Shimerda of Saline county and the creditors in the Rank matter, made a vigorous attack on the law and dealt with it in an exhaustive brief. His claims were these:

1 That because the mortgage sale has been confirmed the creditors are no longer creditors within the meaning of the law, but are the owners of the property.

2 That the act is unconstitutional because it is class legislation and because it destroys the sanctity of contracts.

3 That it is not harmonious legisla-

The Supreme court Saturday reinstated J. C. Robinson, Norfolk attorney who was suspended in January, 933 with leave to ask reinstatement in one year. In his petition, Robinson told the court that by his conduct since his suspension, he has "won the esteem and respect of the citizens of Madison county."

KILL SUSPECT IN SUPERIOR BANK ROBBERY

Jackson, 26, 2622 Davenport street.

Hugh Berry, about 43, owner of the house and one of those under arrest, however, said he heard the women referred to as Catherine, Nellies, "Babe" and Alice. "Babe" is Theola, a slim, short and very attractive brunet.

The two other men arrested are Wayne Kipp and Ray Shores, both of Wymore. Mrs. Kipp and Mrs. Berry and two daughters, Norma Berry 11, and Luella Berry, 14, complete the roster of arrest. Norma Berry, whimpering with a bad cold, and bewildered by events of which she had no understanding, was a particularly pathetic figure.

At the Beatrice hospital, the wounded man told nurses before he died that his name was Earl Keeling and that his home was in St. Joseph, Mo., but officers insisted he was known as Harper.

Close Search.

The house was searched by officers about three times before any money was found. The partitions into which sliding doors had been pushed yielded $2,120 in five, 10 and 20 dollar bills. About $500 more was found behind a "Please Close the Door" sign, above the door of an upstairs bedroom.

Deputy Sheriff Homer Greer of Lancaster county said he found an additional $220, mostly in one dollar bills, tied in a pilot case in a pantry used by the Berrys. The search for more cash awaited daylight.

For six weeks officers have been watching the home. A confidential tip caused an investigation of certain characters in Wymore. Two weeks ago Berry rented the vacant house at Kinney. Wednesday Harper and the man who escaped arrived in company with Theola Giermann and another woman.

Dinner Brewing.

A rabbit dinner was brewing in the kitchen when the officers surrounded the house. The officers first went to the one other house in Kinney. There the first shot was fired, an accidental blast from a shotgun that went into the ceiling. One of the men in this house, whose name the officers asked be kept in confidence, was ordered to go to the Berry's home and inform the occupants that the place was surrounded and that the members of the household had better come out or the officers would storm the house with tear gas and bullets.

The four men came out first, their hands in the air. As Harper and the man who escaped reached the roadway about 20 feet in front of the house they ran and officers opened fire.

Ran Half Mile.

Harper, with a gaping hole in his stomach and a wound in each arm, managed to get a half a mile away before he fell. As he fell he emptied his automatic in the air, either as a signal to his confederate or as a notice to the officers as to where they could find him. The two remaining men were Kipp and Shores. Berry drove up to the house about an hour and a half later, surrendering without resistance when surrounded by a half dozen guns.

None of the women witnessed the shooting, coming out of the house afterwards.

Berry was the only person who attempted to explain the gathering at his home. Officers said he admitted being a bootlegger and running a dice game. He asserted Harper and the other man paid him 25 cents an hour for the privilege of playing there, and contributed to the cost of food. The Omaha women gave confused stories as to visiting the Kipp and Berrys.

Developments Seen.

Further arrests were expected by officers. State Sheriff Benton said the women probably would be referred to federal authorities for possible prosecution for harboring fugitive robbers of a national bank. Neither Berry, Shores nor Kipp were believed members of the Superior holdup gang, and they also faced only possible harboring charges. No serious attempt was made to question any of the persons while the officers pursued a dozen different tasks, including the investigation of at least one other person.

Sheriff Dunn was in charge of the raid because of his familiarity with the district. Other officers participating besides Dunn and Greer were Deputy State Sheriffs J. E. Lancaster and Lee Burns, Deputy Gage County Sheriff Alex Moore, special Gage County Deputies Drew Jamison, Carl Fike, Earl Mudge and Tim Sullivan, all of Beatrice, Police Chief Paul Acton and Officers Arlie Ball, John Liedtke, Other Mumford and Dale Terry of Beatrice; Officer Lester Buss of Wymore; and Police Detectives George Valentine and Steve Goodwin of Lincoln.

Car Identified.

A (Chrysler) sedan, found in the bandit's garage, was identified from records in the state sheriff's office here as the car stolen from Bert Ruch of Falls City on November 20.

Ruch was held up by two armed men as he backed out of a driveway, forced at the point of a .45 calibre pistol to drive 5 miles north of Falls City, where he was relieved of his car and all the money he had on him.

Three sets of automobile license plates were in the car and officers said they also found both long and short wave radio sets at the house. State Sheriff Fred Benton said the car was similar to the one used by the Superior bank robbers.

The prisoners were taken to the county jail at Beatrice.

Food Chief Topic.

The prisoners were held at the Wymore city jail for several hours before being moved to Beatrice. During that time food was the chief topic of conversation.

The women chided the officers about interrupting the rabbit dinner they were preparing to eat, and finally State Sheriff Benton treated the women to coffee and sandwiches.

One Lincoln newspaperman came within a slight margin of getting a volley of lead instead of a story.

Surround Wintersteen.

John Wintersteen arrived at the house in Kinney soon after several officers left with the prisoners for Wymore. The guards on duty surrounded Wintersteen, who, uncertain of how to make his neutrality plain, finally shouted for Sheriff Penton. Greer recognized him.

Officers delayed questioning the prisoners pending the arrival of department of justice agents and Iowa law enforcement officers. Federal officers ordered the house at Kinney sealed.

The prisoners will be questioned also, officers intimated, regarding the robbery of a bank at Cumberland, Ia., last September 17.

Finger prints of the dead man were taken, but positive identification had not been made yet, officers said.

House Resembles Arsenal.

The house was described by officers as an arsenal. Deputy State Sheriff Lancaster told of finding three army rifles, two sawed off shotguns, several automatic pistols and two sawed off rifles, and ammunition by the case, amounting to more than 1,500 rounds. The rifles were under the cushions in a davenport.

Harper gave officers several names before he died, but officers were convinced Francis Harper is the correct name.

The partner who escaped was heard to shout "Francis" during the bullet spattered race from the house.

Tallies With Holdup Car.

Theo L. Giermann said that was his right name. No one even pretended to know where Harper or the other man lived. The sedan, found in a barn behind the house, Sheriff Dunn and Sheriff Benton said, fitted the description of the machine used in the Superior holdup. Benton also hinted at investigating possible connection of the men with other Nebraska bank robberies but his confidence in the Superior tieup temporarily obliterated interest in other cases. Plans were still vague this morning as part of the officers were catching up on sleep and the remainder pursued the search of the house at Kinney and the surrounding country.

Harper was brought to Beatrice by Officers Moore and Valentine who were accompanied by Dr. R. E. Peters of Wymore who operated in a vain attempt to save the man's life.

FRAZIER - LEMKE ACT CHALLENGED

tion within the provisions of the federal constitution but invades the rights of the individual states.

4. That Rank is not a farmer within the meaning of the act but a retired farmer.

"If this form of legislation is upheld as constitutional there is no reason under the sun why every other class of business in this country is not entitled to some protection of this sort," Barth declared.

Robert Hastings of Crete, representing Rank, resubmitted his case on the basis of the arguments made three weeks ago, in which he claimed the law was valid. At that time Judge Munger refused to rule until adjudication of the case.

In the Kalina case J. A. McGuire of Wymore held that the Federal court has exclusive jurisdiction of the entire matter under the provisions of the Frazier-Lemke law. Elmer F. Witte of Pawnee City, appearing on behalf of a creditor and Sheriff Avery of Pawnee county, declared that the law is unconstitutional and held that the Federal court has no jurisdiction over real estate.

Indication was given that this case might boil down to a matter of hours as both the confirmation of sale and the filing of bankruptcy petition occurred on the same day, Sept. 1. If the sale confirmation was first, then the court here will probably not consider keeping the case.

So far as can be ascertained, two Federal judges in the United States have held the law valid and two have found it invalid.

Osceola Man on Way Home From Brother's Wedding Here, Hurt

Clement Anderson, about 32, of Osceola, suffered a fractured pelvis, a dislocated hip and a minor eye injury when his car plunged over a 20-foot embankment between Stromsburg and Osceola Friday night. He was returning home from Lincoln where he acted as best man at the wedding of his brother, Robert D. Anderson of Sioux City, Thursday evening.

Friends of Anderson said they understood something went wrong with his car, causing the accident. Anderson, who was driving alone, managed to crawl from the wreckage and up to the road where he was picked up by a Columbus motorist and taken to Stromsburg. Saturday he was taken to an Omaha hospital.

Robert Anderson, and his bride, formerly Miss Mildred Wright of Lincoln, were notified of the accident while en route to Chicago where they intended to spend a brief honeymoon. The bridal couple returned to Omaha Saturday.

Attaches at the Omaha hospital said Anderson was not in a serious condition.

23 ARE SAVED FROM WRECKED LAKE VESSEL

shore to be settling and little hope was felt that it could be saved.

Coast Guardsman Drowns.

The only fatality was the drowning of John Dipert, 23-year-old coast guardsmen, who was lost when a small boat was swamped last night while trying to reach the Cort. Dipert was answering his first call to life saving duty.

Aiding the efforts of the rescuers, the members of the Cort's crew threw a line to the guardsmen who had made their way to the tip of the breakwater. Then, in improvised breeches buoys, the men reached the breakwater.

Waiting until the last man was on the breakwater, the men started the second leg of their perilous journey, across the three-quarter-mile long breakwater, half of which was swept by towering waves.

The exhausted men were lashed together, in groups of three, and made their way to shore between waves.

Once ashore, they were taken to the civilian conservation corps camp in Muskegon Dunes state park, a mile and half north of the breakwater. They had to walk a mile of that distance, then were carried the rest of the way in ambulances and trucks. They were put to bed at the camp.

The men revealed that they were able to keep a fire going on the ship and that they were sustained by coffee and apples.

The Cort struck on its port bow, then swung around. It seemed likely that, with the subsidence of the wind, which still was of gale velocity, it would slip from the ledge and sink.

CARLSEN HABEAS CORPUS DENIED

timus which orders the former Lincoln Trust company president's commitment. Hensel has had Carlsen in custody since November 23 but said he planned to execute the commitment Saturday afternoon.

Accedes to Request.

"I see no reason, though, for denying Mr. Carlsen's request that he be allowed to see Attorney Perry before he is taken out to the penitentiary," Hensel explained. "He is secure in my custody and there is no reason for any great hurry."

Frank A. Peterson, another of Carlsen's attorneys, saw his client during the morning but had no comment to make with reference to the commitment. He did point out, however, that an argument would be submitted to the Supreme court Monday on the motion for a writ of error on Judge Broady's denial of the coram nobis.

Judge Donohoe rendered his decision on the application for a habeas corpus writ late Friday afternoon.

Beside the state supreme court writ of error hearing Monday, it is also expected that Carlsen's attorneys may appeal Donahoe's ruling on the habeas corpus writ to the Federal circuit court of appeals. Attorney General-elect W. H. Wright, who has directed much of the state's prosecution, points out however, that neither will this stay Carlsen's incarceration.

Engineers Favor Unification Power Projects; Hunt Men Who Drove Off In Falls City Taxicab

MAKE ESTIMATE PROBABLE COST

Would Construct Heavy Transmission Lines To Omaha.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—A plan upon which the Platte valley public power and irrigation district board of directors and engineers have been deliberating for the last few months, for the unification of all Platte valley public power interests, is known to have the approval of PWA Engineer Latenser, and the tentative approval of the PWA at Washington.

The latter has instructed Supervising Engineer Hogan and General Manager and Chief Engineer Price, of the Platte valley district, to make an estimate of the cost of such unification and present the same to the Washington authorities. Engineers Price and Hogan were ordered two weeks ago to go to Washington to present the matter to the officials there. They have returned and report the PWA authorities at Washington look upon the proposition with favor.

Looking To Future.

"The Platte valley board," declared President Harry Williams, "was influenced in a large degree in making up their minds on the unification idea, by the consideration of merely tying the Platte valley and the Loup valley plans together for the purpose of forming a basis for all future public power development for the state."

Commissioner Burdick of the municipal lighting plant at Grand Island said that he has been contacted with reference to the physical connection proposed to make what in effect will be a Platte valley administration, or a Platte-Missouri, similar to the TVA of Tennessee. It would unite, merely by the addition of heavier power lines from North Platte to Omaha and between Omaha and Sioux City, all of these larger electric plants making voltage more firm and volume more steady.

Approves Contracts.

OMAHA, Dec. 1—(AP)—John Latenser, jr., state PWA engineer, late yesterday approved the low bid of Hardwick and Co., of Memphis, for open canal excavation and some concrete work on the Sutherland project. The bid was $380,476. The work involves moving about 2,230,000 yards of dirt. On the same project Latenser approved the low bid of the Omaha Steel works for seven radial gates for $19,356.

On the Loup river project at Columbus, Latenser approved the low bid of the Martin-Day company of Lincoln, for excavation of 3,300,000 yards of dirt for $260,920.

Search For Farmer Who Left Suicide Note In Automobile

SCHUYLER, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Adolph Zrust, 21-year-old farmer, was still listed as missing today and a note indicating he would take his life remained unexplained. County authorities dragged the Platte river yesterday and planned to resume the search today. Zrust, who is unmarried, left a note in his car near the bridge saying he would drown himself, but revealed no motive for his action.

Skull Is Fractured In Highway Crash

Car Of Council Bluffs Man Struck By Truck Near Scribner and Two Are Injured.

SCRIBNER, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP) Henry Christensen, 36, Council Bluffs, Ia., FERA worker, is recovering in a hospital here from a fractured skull suffered in an automobile accident east of here Thursday. He also suffered a dislocated shoulder.

Christensen's 11 year old daughter, Arlene, who also suffered head injuries in the crash, was removed from the hospital Friday to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Schultz of Scribner.

The accident occurred when a truck driven by Raymond Forney it. Mrs. Christensen and six of Dodge attempted to pass Christensen's car but sideswiped other children beside Arlene escaped injury.

Forney was released by officials here after being held on a reckless driving charge.

Cuts Arm in Fall Through Glass Door

Albert DeBoer, 45, of Firth was badly cut about the left forearm when he fell through a glass door while working in Firth Friday afternoon. Almost all the arteries, tendons and muscles were cut, Dr. I. C. Munger, sr., who is attending him at Lincoln General hospital, said. Dr. Munger said it would not be necessary to amputate the arm.

Thief Snatches Purse From Lincoln Girl

Police Saturday morning were searching for the young man who snatched a purse, containing 35 cents and a fountain pen, from the hands of Ruth Meierhenry, 1421 C street, as she was walking south on Fourteenth early Friday evening. Her assailant ran west down the alley between D and E, after snatching the purse. She described him as being about 5 feet 7 inches tall, medium build with dark curly hair. He was wearing a dark overcoat, she told police.

Chief Justice Johnston Rounds Out 50 Years on Kansas Supreme Court

TOPEKA, Kas., Dec. 1—(AP)—Chief Justice William Agnew Johnston, the "grand old man" of Kansas, rounded out half a century of continuous service on the Kansas Supreme court bench today.

It was back in 1884 when Kansas was a lusty young state that the jurist, then 36 years old and just completing his fourth year as state attorney general, took his place on the state's highest court. His friends say his record of continuous service on one bench is not equalled by any jurist.

WINTER GRIPS WESTERN U. S.

Several Lives Lost In Fierce Gales and Heavy Snows.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1—(AP)—December arrived today to find winter already firmly ensconced in the western United States.

Frigid gales lashed the northern tier of states from the Great Lakes to the Pacific.

The ore freighter, Henry W. Cort, piled up on a breakwater of the Muskegon, Mich., harbor in a 60-mile an hour gale. One man, John Diepert, drowned last night when a surf boat was swamped by heavy waves as it attempted to reach the Cort.

Two duck hunters, Harry Hickey and Roscoe French, were feared drowned in lake of the Ozarks, whipped by a high wind that brought a record-breaking snow to the Missouri hill region. The storm brought death to two men in Iowa and one in Minnesota.

Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa rushed to clear snow-blocked roads in advance of an expected new fall that would make the task more difficult. Strong north winds had piled drifts in the three states, paralyzing road travel and slowing down trains.

SUTTON POSTMASTER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—The postoffice department today announced appointment of Charles M. Brown as acting postmaster at Sutton, Neb.

WILL WORK FOR HIGHWAY PATROL

Good Roads People Also For Commission and Tax On Trucks.

OMAHA, Dec. 1—(AP)—Legislation for a state highway patrol system and for a non-partisan state highway commission will be urged at the next session of the legislature by the Nebraska Good Roads association. the Omaha chamber of commerce public highways committee and the Omaha Automobile association, it was indicated at a meeting of representatives of the three organizations. W. B. Cheek, chairman of the chamber highway committee, was authorized to appoint a committee to study highway patrol laws of other states and to suggest a "comprehensive" program for Nebraska.

Representatives of trucking interests will be interviewed in an attempt to agree on a legislative proposal for the taxing of trucks in Nebraska on a ton-mile basis and representatives of the outdoor advertising industry will be consulted on methods for regulation of highway billboards.

On the need of a state highway partol system, Mr. Cheek said: "We certainly need something of that kind. The Nebraska Bankers association is eager to help with this legislation I believe. The last bill proposing a state system of police was too cumbersome and too expensive.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

(Special to The Star.)

ODELL, Neb., Dec. 1—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shalla, sr., observed their fifty-ninth wedding anniversary Thursday at their home. They received a large number of gifts, and during the day friends called to congratulate them.

As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 1—When you don't know what to write, or talk about, you can always resort to two subjects, weddings and inflation. I once heard Lady Astor say "only two things get the house of lords excited, a tax on liquor, and a tax on landed estates, then the old lords really come to life." Well about the only time you can get our "big houses of finance" interested is to start talking about cutting that dollar up into little ones.

The big fellows say, "Mr. Roosevelt we think you mean well, but your ideas are wrong, we are not going to play with you." He can say, "I am sorry gentlemen, love to have you with me, in fact I think you are still playing with me, it's a game called heavy, heavy, hangs over your head, and it's not an axe, it's just a printing press which stops all government interest, don't slam the door as you go out."

Yours, WILL.

Today

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Mr. William Rogers, who philosophizes, observes that Russian princes, grand dukes, princesses and grand duchesses of pre-war date were guests at the British royal wedding, but "not a Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler present."

Those gentlemen were not present in the flesh, but they were present in every royal mind capable of distinct thought. And, although absent, they will keep royalty and nobility on its good behaviour for some time to come, not that nobility amounts to much in these days, except as bait for American heiresses.

United States agents are concentrating on capturing the very small, 21-year-old wife of the dead "Baby Face" Nelson. If found in company with the bandit that helped Nelson kill two government agents before he, Nelson, was riddled by bullets, it will go hard with the lady. Everything will be said with bullets.

If she is found, alone, agents will endeavor to take her alive, although their present, excellent motto is: "Kill them first, take them afterward."

If the "Baby Face" widow is captured, it will be interesting to learn if she will tell how and why the body of her husband came to be thrown into a ditch, stripped almost naked.

The inquest is to be held at 7 p. m. at Castle, Roper & Mathews mortuary. Bell died from injuries suffered when struck by a car driven by W. H. Fenner, 22, Marysville, Kas., Thursday afternoon.

RFC Loan Helps Pay Howells Depositors

Nineteen per cent additional on accounts due depositors in the failed Colfax bank at Howells is being paid by the state receivership division with money obtained as an RFC loan on the bank's assets. This allotment amounts to $73,036. There has now been distributed to the creditors a total of $49,97, or 39 per cent.

Including this payment, partial returns have been made in the past month to patrons of 22 failed banks, totaling $382,4884. Installments refunded to depositors ranged from .8 per cent up to 37 per cent, the largest being at Guide Rock and the smallest at Martinsburg.

All but two of these banks had previously reimbursed their customers from 0 to 59 per cent of the amounts owing.

Officer Lancaster Decides 6-Shooter Best Gun After All

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—An old-fashioned, six shooter will be good enough for Deputy State Sheriff Jarvis E. Lancaster from now on.

Lancaster, who won his appointment largely as a result of killing a bank robber at Plattsmouth about a year ago, was wielding a Thompson submachine gun at Kinney last night when two men ran a gauntlet of a dozen guns, one escaping and the other being mortally wounded.

But Lancaster's weapon jammed and the stacatto of death-dealing lead he had counted on did not materialize.

"If I'd a had my old six shooter, they wouldn't be looking for that man today," Lancaster declared.

AWARD CONTRACTS TO LINCOLN FIRMS

TECUMSEH, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—The Kingery Construction company of Lincoln has been awarded the contract for the brick addition to the school building at Elk Creek, the price being $8,785, less the plumbing fixtures. The contract for the heating plant for the school house has been let to Olson Brothers of Lincoln for $821.

ROBBERS STEAL FALLS CITY CAR

Abduct Taxi Operator, Take His Money and Release Him.

FALLS CITY, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Chapman Halbert, owner of a taxicab company, here was abducted by two gunmen Friday night, robbed of $35 or $40 and then dumped out on the highway near Dawson, when the robbers stole his new automobile.

Halbert purchased the car last Wednesday. About 5:30 p. m., two men went to his cab stand and told him they wanted to go to a house in the eastern part of Falls City. They climbed into the rear seat and he drove away with them.

About two blocks from the cab stand both men displayed revolvers and one told Halbert they were not going to hurt him but only wanted to use him and his car.

A few minutes later the smaller gunman, who was 34 or 35 years old, climbed into the front seat with Halbert and the taller robber, who was said by the cab owner to be 38 or 40 years old, remained in the rear seat.

They forced Halbert to drive about a mile out on the highway and back to town three times and apparently were looking for something or someone. Finally, the younger gunman took the wheel and drove to a point about three-quarters of a mile from Dawson, where he stopped the car and ordered Halbert to get out, after the other robber had taken the money from him.

The larger gunman called Halbert "a pretty good guy," and gave him a dollar, with instructions to catch a ride back home. The gunmen then drove away in the car. Officers were quickly notified by Halbert who hurried to a farm house, but no trace of the gunmen was found. Both robbers, Halbert said, were well dressed and wore tan overcoats.

JAMES BARNARD FUNERAL.

Farming And Livestock Interests Predominate In New Legislature

Farming, live stock, and dairy producers of Nebraska will not hold absolute control in the coming legislature, but will constitute such a formidable minority in each branch as to enable those interests to exercise a dominant influence in the passage of new laws and in any other action that may be taken by the assembly, including the redistricting of the state for election of members in 1936 to the first one-house diet.

There will be 41 active farmers, ranchers, and dairy operators in the lower house, out of 100, with several others who are engaged in various occupations but are interested on the side in agricultural activities.

Ten In Senate

In the senate the farm bloc as such will number only 10— fewer than one-third of the total membership, 33—but there are also one retired farmer and a few more solons who have direct agricultural connections. Two senators are not yet classified as to their vocations. They are F. O. Price of Thayer and Edward Gillette of Holdrege.

Ten lawyers in the house and six in the senate will constitute the legal personnel of the law-making department, being the second most numerous group. For the third place it is almost a tie between real estate, insurance, and loan against mercantile dealers. There are 11 of the former in the house and two in the senate, while merchants are represented by eight of their guild in the lower chamber and three in the upper. However, there are two retired merchants in the house and one in the senate.

Three house seats will be occupied by editors and publishers, but in the senate there is no newspaper spokesman.

One representative of the medical profession will serve in each wing of the legislature. The house, besides, has an osteopath among its membership.

One Banker Member

Financial lines are rather meagerly represented, the only ones listed in that category being one banker in the senate and one broker in the house.

Herewith are the occupations of other members as compiled in secretary of state's office:

Senate—Accounting clerk, 1; boilermakers and machinists, 2; veterinarian, 1; photographer, 1; florist and nurseryman, 1.

House—Student, 1; retired (no occupation given), 1; railroad clerk, 1; tailor, 1; clerk, 1; sand and gravel producer, 1; retired educator, 1; salesman, 1; miller, 1; minister, 1; housewife, 1; hatchery owner, 1; oil and gas dealer, 1; mortician, 1; florist and nurseryman, 1; mortician, 1; manufacturer of farm supplies, 1; county officer, 1.

The county officer is J. W. Buffington of Hamlet, now serving as county judge in Hayes county.

There are two women in the house but no member of their sex has ever held a seat in the senate.

A "JUST RIGHT" FROCK FOR SCHOOL OR PLAY

PATTERN 2078

BY ANNE ADAMS

"This is the way we're dressed for play," says little sister of her cunning bloomer frock—and "This is the way we go to school," her slightly older sister might add. For if mother looked and looked it would be hard to find a more suitable play or school frock. The demurely simple, round collar is "just right" for wee girls. Stitched seamings emphasize the importance of the quaint yoke with its nice double points—two jaunty inverted pleats give plenty of freedom to the skirt—and the smart patch pockets are just as smart on little girls' clothes as they are on mother's this season. Short sleeves may be made with the pattern.

Pattern 2078 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 requires 2½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Order your WINTER PATTERN BOOK. Order it NOW! The new ANNE ADAMS models are stunning, and SO easy to make! Designs for all ages and all occasions. PRICE OF BOOK, FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Seek Woman And Man Who Held Up, Robbed Tecumseh Resident

TECUMSEH, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Officers today said they had no trace of the man and woman who held up William Story of Tecumseh near Auburn last Tuesday night and robbed him of $420. Story told officers his car was crowded off the road and the woman, revolver in hand, forced him to hand over the money, which they appeared to know he had. Story, a relief agent for the Burlington railroad, said the money was not company funds.

Boost For National Park For Nebraska

OMAHA, Dec. 1—(AP)—Iowans and Nebraskans lined up behind the move to obtain a national park for this region at a dinner Friday night of the Nebraska-Iowa charter No. 1, Hotel Greeters of America. The 30,000 acre tract of land along the Missouri river between Homer and Decatur, that has been designated as a favorable site for the proposed Lewis and Clark national park, was spoken of by speakers as one of beauty and great possibility. The park boosters obtained a promise of Senator-elect Burke and Charles McLaughlin, his successor in congress, that they would push the project in Washington. Governor-elect Cochran also promised his aid.

Nebraska Farm Census Supervisors Appointed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(INS)—The census bureau today announced the appointment of the first batch of farm census supervisors who will begin work on January 2.

In all, 225 of these supervisors are to be appointed in the 48 states.

A tentative list of district headquarters and the number of enumerators to be employed includes: Nebraska: Scottsbluff, 100; Kearney, 150, Columbus, 150; Hastings 87; Lincoln, 145.

Nebraska Team Seventh.

Nebraska's 4-H livestock judging team at the Chicago club congress won seventh place according to word received Saturday by Elton Lux, extension editor at the University of Nebraska agricultural colege. Minnesota took first honors.

The team, made up of Loren Kruse, John Beckwith and Ivan Schroeder, all of Albion, judged horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Kruse won fourth in the individual horse judging contest and the Nebraska team was third on horses and swine.

Given One Year Burglary Charge

MINDEN, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Walker Lambert of Fleming, Colo., was sentenced to a year in the state reformatory after pleading guilty to a burglary charge before District Judge Munday here Friday. Lambert had previously pleaded not guilty in County court at Holdrege to a charge of looting a barn belonging to H. L. Marlott.

Stuck Valve Causes Low Water Pressure

A reduction of the water pressure Friday afternoon was caused when a valve in one of the pressure pumps stuck, according to water department officials. The pressure was restored after about 15 minutes by bringing other pumps into service.

LOSES BUTCHERED HOG.

(Special to The Star.)

DEWITT, Neb., Dec. 1—William Buss, farmer living near here, is regretting the loss of a freshly butchered hog at his farm. He left it hanging outside to cool and the next morning he found that dogs had dragged it down and eaten the greater part.

Two Are Bound Over Charge Of Assault With Intent To Rob

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Vernon Pickrell of Kearney and F. E. Sherwood of Aurora are awaiting arraignment in District court on charges of assault with intent to rob.

They were arrested in connection with the wounding of Austin Gregg, jr., North Platte grocer, last November 16, when three men attempted to rob his store. Friday they were bound over to District court. Harry Dunn of Lexington was cleared of a similar charge. Gregg is recovering from a gunshot wound.

WHY A CHAMBER OF COMMERCE?

EACH year the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce conducts a membership drive. In the twelve month period in every community the size of Lincoln there are frequent changes in business and constant shifts in population. It is for the purpose of enrolling newcomers, and those who heretofore have not been members of the chamber, that the campaign is conducted. It got under way Friday, and will continue for the next three weeks.

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce is an unusually compact and efficient organization. It has sustained its membership better throughout the last few years than most similar groups. It has been able to do this because of its record of achievement. It has been a potent force in business and community development in Lincoln. It has provided an inspiring type of leadership in the matters of greatest concern to the city. It has taken an enlightened and unselfish view in connection with the rest of the state, in recognition that its own welfare and the welfare of every section within Nebraska are tied together inseparably.

We say these things because so frequently the question arises: Why a Chamber of Commerce? There are many organizations in existence at this time, each performing a helpful and useful service, but the Chamber of Commerce of every city is and should be the main artery through which passes civic plans and programs for development. The chamber has a record which speaks for itself. It embraces support for those things which have a real value in Lincoln's life. It was active in the fight for a more adequate water supply in the city. It procured largely the Veterans' hospital. It assisted in the campaign for a new municipal building, and took part in the building program which gave this community a most magnificent school plan. These contributions were unselfish. The membership of the Chamber of Commerce embraces taxpayers whose self-interest rests in a sane and sensible tax program, along with everyone else.

And in its routine life, the chamber has been a constructive force. Its educational committee mailed 12,000 personal letters to graduates of high schools in Nebraska, directing attention to the advantages of the higher instiutions of learning. Two hundred and seventy senior classes in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, and South Dakota on invitation of the chamber selected Lincoln for their class day outing, for which sightseeing tours were arranged and in 103 instances, the class had luncheon at the chamber.

It has been a busy beehive of activity during these years, lending its strength and its support to every worthwhile undertaking. It merits the support of the citizens of Lincoln, and that support best can be indicated by membership in it.

SANTA CLAUS.

FROM Tabitha home, an elderly woman telephoned this office to express her pleasure and delight in the Christmas parade, which took place in Lincoln Friday afternoon. She was expressing, she said, the sentiment of the others at the institution from the oldest to the youngest.

And that was typical of the crowds on the street.

People rarely grow too old or too indifferent and cynical to become blind and unmoved by the Christmas spirit. And in the next three weeks, it will become increasingly evident.

PUNISHMENT AT THE TOP.

FRANK CARIDEO, resigned football coach at the University of Missouri, and Daniel Salamanca, deposed president of Bolivia, are victims of a common fate. Both were made the "goats" for failure to achieve victory in their respective spheres. It mattered not that the human material and other resources at their command may have been inadequate to achieve success. The leaders either had to win or forfeit their positions.

The German kaiser suffered the same fate when his armies failed to conquer Europe and were about to be overwhelmed at the time of the signing of the armistice. Herbert Hoover found out by experience that overwhelming popularity can quickly turn into mass discontent and hatred when the head of a government is unable to fulfill the rosy promises he made before election.

Popularity is a great thing—while it lasts. The trouble with it is that cheering throngs one day become growling critics the next when things don't go right. The man at the helm often has to take it on the chin for events that may have been beyond his control.

There is only one way to get away from such fickleness of the populace. Lenin, Stalin, Mussolini, and Hitler have shown how to do it. In their countries it is dangerous to criticise anything the leaders do. Everything considered, the democratic system seems best. If heads must roll, it is better that one or two at the top should suffer decapitation occasionally than that the right of free expression should be taken from the rank and file.

THE COLLECTING HOBBY.

TO cure that inferiority complex, get the collecting hobby. When the average person stumbles onto collecting something he immediately becomes a Mussolini, at least in his own mind.

Let's suppose a fellow starts collecting some freak thing, oh, say pencils. He gathers them from neighbors, friends, and the four corners of the earth. He gets them in hundreds of shapes, sizes, colors and often with a bit of sentiment attached to them, or perhaps some historic value. What happens! The collector has become the king, or crown prince, of pencil collectors. He is proud, he has made new friends, he has satisfied his vanity.

Lincoln has a large group of stamp collectors, one of the most popular hobbies. They have regular meetings, and no doubt the happiest one of the lot is the fellow who has a stamp none of the others has. He may be just a cog in the wheel of daily life, but he's the supreme monarch to the others and to himself.

Growing flowers is a hobby with many others. And the person who produces a scrawny little bloom is just as proud of it as the one who has monstrous blooms, simply because he raised it. He struts around with an air of: Look what I did. It's his flower and nothing can make him believe it is not the most beautiful thing in the whole world, no matter how terrible it may look to you.

There are scores of collecting hobbies. The freakier they are the more fascinating they seem. If a fellow has a better collection than anyone, he is sitting on top of the world, so far as his personal ego is concerned. This self-pride puts a rosier tint on his otherwise drab vision. He takes a firmer hold on life. He imagines he can hear people whisper as he passes: "There goes a fellow who has the finest collection of milk bottle tops in the world."

RESOURCEFUL HUSBANDS.

BACK in Pennsylvania lives either the slickest or the meanest husband in the world. He makes "David Harum" look like a piker when it comes to cheating. Apparently he didn't have any money, or else turned his pay over to his wife. But his method of getting cash revealed a stunt that is ingenious, even if a little dishonest.

His wife, handling the family finances, bought the coal and wood for the furnace. Every day or so the husband would appear at the front door of his home with a sack of fuel, telling his spouse he had picked it up down by the railroad tracks, and offering to sell it to her.

For a long time the missus bought the fuel from her husband, and he would hurry to the nearest place for beer. But no matter how much coal or wood she bought from him, the supply in the bin became smaller and smaller. She set a trap for the thief, and caught her beloved mate. She told the judge all about it and was granted a divorce for cruelty.

ONE BREAD.

HERR HITLER has added still another restriction to those already imposed upon the liberties of the German people. Before a farm group, his chief of the grain division explained that the government not only has fixed the price of bread, but has prescribed exactly how it shall be made. Any departure from the established standard must be approved first by special license.

Some 50 million German stomachs may have something to say about that.

No two individuals see exactly alike when it comes to bread. Some favor the long loaf, some prefer a thick and a ponderous loaf, and some want it sliced thin, and some want it thick, but Herr Hitler insists that what suits his taste and his stomach is good enough for all.

QUESTION.
Bangor, Me.

I live in a countryside laid waste by logging and mining camps. As a lover of nature I wonder why this ruin should be allowed. It began when they stripped our land of splendid timber. Now they cover it with heaps of refuse. Can nothing be done to restrain such waste of natural resources?

ANSWER.

Have you considered that every time you ride in a train car on a steel railroad over a steel bridge you are reaping the benefits for which the former beauties of your landscape have been sacrificed? The countless homes of our plain people and the equipment of those homes could not have been procured so readily or so cheaply but for the felling of the primeval forests you lament. Yet I strongly sympathize with your complaint, and so do all lovers of nature. Unquestionably, vast mischief has been wrought by the carelessness and indifference of industrialists who dealt in lumber or mined the coal and ore of our mountains. All the beauty they touched perished. Their ambitious greed and rapacity and their craving for huge returns have left many a desolate scene behind their so-called "progress."

Fish have forsaken the polluted rivers, and game is no longer found in the coverage. Those who speak proudly of this or that product in wood, iron or steel should not forget that until a little more than two decades ago the plundering of our natural resources above and below the soil had few if any legal limits.

Since then, however, and largely owing to the influence and foresight of President Theodore Roosevelt, the splendid public parks of the West and other open spaces of scenic beauty have become national property. As for the future, I see no reason why any industry should have to spread ugliness around the locality of its operations. Certainly the streams and rivers ought not to be poisoned by the chemicals and by-products used in concentrating ore or in manufacturing fabrics. No further damage to the citizen's common rights in the beauty of the nation's countryside should be permitted. Much can be done in cities, towns and mountain regions to make these useful enterprises more conducive to the general comfort. Corporate wealth ought not to be gained at the expense of public welfare, and this welfare is inseparably associated with attractive natural surroundings.

QUESTION.
Oakland, Calif.

In what ways can religion be made helpful to so many of us who have felt the pressure of these days?

ANSWER.

I would that pure and undefiled religion, which is the love of God expressed in service for man, could more fully enter into our political and economic relations. Few will question their serious handicaps and disabilities or that they reflect the weakness and selfishness of common humanity. We have lost sight of the fact that this republic was inspired by the ideal of an equitable distribution of advantage and opportunity, and was founded by honest men for like minded ones to administer. Do you doubt that if the laws of Christ governed our everyday life tremendous social benefits would result? For my part, I believe our destiny as a nation hangs upon the observance of those laws.

We live in a world made marvelous by machines. But neither the engineers nor the economists can moralize the masses, nor tell us what to do with the millions whose labors are rendered superfluous by modern inventions. The spirits and the mouth of millions are alike empty. They must be fed with God's bread as well as with the bread of earth. It is therefore apparent to me and to many others that the spiritual factor has to regulate the profit motive and check an avid materialism which blights all it touches. The best statesmanship cannot keep us off the rocks unless it is inspired and upheld by the golden rule. That rule is common to Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, because it is the divinely provided foundation for a truly civilized state.

We have been warned that where there is no vision the people perish. Whence comes that vision if not from the father of light. His self-revelation is our anchorage in the time of storm and our hope when everything else is hapless and undone. Why not turn to Him as the refuge and defense of the nation? After all, life's purpose is not to amass wealth nor to seek the frail bubble of reputation. It must have higher aims than things visible suggest, and without those aims it will flounder in the depths of temporal and moral destitution. What profit have we in our vaunted personal liberty if it only means license, excess, greed, drime, brutality, degrading pleasures and illicit pursuits?

QUESTION.
Lansing, Mich.

Is it true that no astromoner is a skeptic?

ANSWER.

Few habits are more salutary than honest doubt about questionable generalizations. I do not know nor does anybody else except the searchers of the skies themselves what their views on religion are. But the ancient stoics said, "If you would endure life nobly contemplate the mighty heavens." No previous generation has had greater opportunities or facilities to act on this advice than our own and I think that a look at the stars through a modern telescope is one of the finest conceivable aids to wonder, awe and faith. Astronomy like beauty has its spiritual side. The glory of God is visible in His bespangled firmament, and the day and night of suns and systems have a revealing language all their own.

Recent improvements in giant telescopes promise us some fresh astronomical close-ups with still more astounding sights of matter's magnificent array. It is quite incorrect to suppose that we know everything about our next-door neighbors of the solar system. Saturn is not merely a striped globe whose shadow "sleeps on his luminous ring." It has suddenly produced a huge white spot which the astronomers are discussing. The belts of Jupiter's ruddy bulk are always changing color. The melting snowcaps of Mars seem to obey the law of the seasons.

Our nearest world, the moon, is about 239,000 miles distant from the earth. So what it lacks in size it makes up in sociability. One glimpse at it through a high-power telescope is unforgettable. Its beauty is dazzling, literally ablaze with the reflected light of the sun, while the dark reflections here and there are the shadows of peaks, some nearly 20,000 feet in height, thrown far across the lunar plains as the orb majestically turns in its orbit. To watch dawn and night steal over those vast dead ranges on which no human foot has ever trodden is as strangely moving as though it were a ghost visiting this world after it, too, had died. Certainly it is difficult after these august panoramas to doubt the existence of a presiding Mind in the universe.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Black Pussy's Fun

Some hunters swiftly kill their prey;
Some with their victims like to play.
Old Mother Nature.

There are not many of the latter. In fact there are very few. With most of the furred and feathered hunters killing is wholly a matter of getting food to eat, and hunting is the means to this end. But a few there are, notably man, who hunt and kill for fun. Black Pussy the Cat is another, and most cats are just like her. And the better fed they are the more they like to hunt and kill just for fun. Anyway it is so with very many of them.

Nanny Meadow Mouse, visiting Mrs. Short-tail in a shock of corn in Farmer Brown's cornfield, peeped out to see Black Pussy around a neighboring shock. Even as she looked a half-grown young Mouse scampered out from the next shock and started for another. He didn't see Black Pussy but Black Pussy saw him. Before he was half way to that other shock she had him. Nanny Meadow Mouse shut her eyes as Black Pussy pounced on the young Mouse. When she venteured to open them again, expecting to see the young Mouse dead, she saw at once that he was very little hurt if really hurt at all. He was just starting to steal away while Black Pussy's head was turned. "He's going to get away after all," whispered Nanny to Mrs. Short-tail. The latter shook her head and sighed. "I'm afraid not," said she. "Black Pussy is letting him do that purposely just for the fun of catching him again. See that! What did I tell you?"

Black Pussy had again sprung on the young Mouse. Now she crouched and knocked him about with first one paw and then the other. She didn't hurt him. She took care not to do that. But she frightened him terribly.

"Isn't it dreadful?" whispered Mrs. Short-tail. "I am so glad it isn't one of my children. And there isn't a thing we can do about it. She will play with him that way until she gets tired of it and then will kill him."

Black Pussy got to her feet as if to walk away. She acted as if she no longer had the slightest interest in that young Mouse. She looked everywhere but toward him. He ventured a few steps. He took them slowly, carefully. Nothing happened. Black Pussy appeared to have forgotten all about him. He took some more and still nothing happened.

"I do believe she really is going to let him go this time," whispered Nanny excitedly.

It did seem so. That young Mouse was almost near enough to the next shock of corn to reach it with a quick short run. He darted straight for it. He was almost to it.

"He's going to make it!" squeaked Nanny.

And then Black Pussy whirled about and sprang. A paw came down on the tail of that Mouse just as his nose touched the dry leaves at the base of the shock.

Then Black Pussy seized him and gave him a little toss to one side, instantly springing after him. He lay quiet, too frightened to move. First with one paw and then with another she poked him. She stretched out on her side and played with him between her paws. You would have thought she meant him no harm. But he knew and those watching knew that in the end she would kill him. She was tormenting him. She would have said that she was having fun with him.

"Isn't there anything we can do?" whispered Nanny.

"Not a thing," replied Mrs. Short-tail. "This sort of thing happens over here every day. It is bad enough to be caught and killed at once, but to be tormented that way is just awful. And nobody around here does it but Black Pussy."

"He's going to get away, after all," whispered Nanny to Mrs. Short-tail.

Chapter 47.
SILVER'S OFFER.

Marian's chin came up in a characteristic gesture. "You needn't mention any conditions. I don't barter for men. If he loves you, you can have him, I don't want the divided love of any man."

Silver stood looking at her a moment as though some preconceived plan had been changed—"very high and mighty aren't you," she challenged, "I suppose you think you can win Hamlin."

Marian didn't answer and her silence seemed to infuriate Silver. "Want them both, don't you. Well maybe you'll condescend to bargain for Lon's freedom. He is under arrest at the city jail."

"I know it," remarked Marian calmly.

"You know it. How?" flashed Silver.

Marian's mind, alert with fear, provided ready words. "I was talking to Bowen, the managing editor of The Dispatch, when you came in. He told me."

"Did he tell you where Lon was found and what he was doing?"

"No."

"He was in my father's office robbing his safe. One of the cleaning women saw him force his way in, and telephoned Dad."

"I thought your father was supposed to be in Northern California."

"Not after what I saw last night. Foxy, weren't you? Thought you were going to talk Hamlin into going to Cliff and discredit me so he'd come across with the information you lost in that letter."

Marian didn't answer.

"Well, can't you talk? What did you think of the way I snaked that letter from you?"

Marian smiled. "Clever," she conceded, "I'd like to have thought of something as smart, myself."

Silver relaxed. "If you'll look at things that way, we'll get along all right."

"Suppose you tell me what you want?" suggested Marian. She had realized suddenly that all she had to do was to keep Silver talking until the District Attorney appeared.

"That night you came to see me in Nevada, and telephoned that lie to Cliff, I thought you had played me a low trick. It turned out otherwise. It made me solid with him. He's making money now; money like his father made and left to him. That shanty Irish girl he married doesn't need much. She wouldn't know what to do with it if she had it, so he's giving me the allowance, call it alimony if you will, that he should have settled on me.,

"If you go to him in an effort to break my father, he'll know the truth and my income will stop. I don't want to marry that stuffed toad, Blaine Kelly, but I'll have to if that happens."

"You would be thinking of yourself instead of your father's disgrace," Marian interposed.

"You bet I would," agreed Silver. "I'd do what anyone else would do. Don't pretend you're doing anything now but thinking of yourself, or how this proposition of mine is going to affect you."

"Me or mine," Marian conceded softly.

"Mine," said Silver with a sneer, "still calling Lon yours. He isn't. Do you want to hear this proposition, or not?"

"It doesn't matter."

"Oh doesn't it? Well, you lend an ear anyway. Now here's what I want you to do."

"I can listen much better if I'm sitting down," suggested Marian amiably. "You'll find cigarets in that copper box to the left of the divan."

Silver looked at her a moment, then laughed. "Jan," she said, "I didn't think you had it in you. All right," she went to the divan, slipped out of her wrap, chose a cigaret, lighted it with deliberation, then leaned towards Marian.

"Queer isn't it, the way our lives have run along together. Remember the first day you came to school? You were ugly, skinny, freckled, lanky—" she inhaled and in the silence of that moment Marian heard Hero sniffling along the lower crack of the door.

"And you were beautiful," conceded Marian generously. "I was just thinking when you came in that you had worn a black velvet dress that day." She noticed Silver had placed the revolver beside her on the divan and it was slowly sliding to the edge of the cushion.

"You're not hard to look at now," Silver continued, "but this isn't getting down to business.

"That night you came up to Nevada on a news story, you stepped in and made my affairs your own. I was ready to bank on your honor. I showed you the letter Cliff had written me in order to convince you that I had a right to feel bitter towards him. I was sure you wouldn't use it in your newspaper, but I didn't expect you to steal it."

"I didn't steal it," interposed Marian, and because she didn't wish to implicate Hamlin she gave another explanation. "It was put into my pocket by someone who evidently thought it the same wad of notes I had used on the Brown bribery case. Lon brought them up with him because I had left them in his car when I left the court house early that evening."

"That makes a good story," agreed Silver, "but if you were so honorable, how did it chance that you took the trouble to go over the letter a second time and discover that page?"

"I chanced to reach into my pocket for change to tip a porter, found the notes, or what I thought were notes, decided to check them and dispose of the paper. In the bright light of the desk lamp I caught the name Maddern Construction Company at the top of the pad. I had spent the previous eight days covering the Brown trial and the name was too fresh in my memory to let me pass it by without closer inspection. When I found the title, J. C. McSwain, general manager, just beneath I wanted to know more. And then I found the page you had overlooked. I had every intention of returning the letter to you but you ran out on me after you arrived in town, if you'll remember, I tried to find your address the next day and

Petroleum Marketers To Hold Convention

Fourteenth Annual Meeting Of State Group To Be Held At Omaha, December 4-6.

About 800 petroleum jobbers and their families are expected to attend the fourteenth annual convention of the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers at Omaha December 4 to 6, according to C. M. Sutherland, secretary-treasurer. Opening at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the program presents a number of prominent speakers on phases of the oil industry and headlining the entertainment will be the annual banquet and show Wednesday evening.

The annual business session when the secretary-treasurer's report is given and officers and directors elected comes Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. Women will be entertained with a theatre party Tuesday evening following the luncheon at which Governor-elect Roy Cochran will be introduced to the convention. A bridge party will follow a luncheon Wednesday.

Prominent speakers for the program include Dr. John D. Clark of the University of Nebraska; Russell Brown, compliance director, planning and co-ordination committee, of Washington; Dr. Emory Skinner, refining engineer of Duncan, Okla.; Arthur Bowring, president of the Nebraska Good Roads association, of Merriman; A. W. Horton, Oklahoma City, Okla.; I. A. O'Shaugnessy of Minneapolis, Minn.; Frank Moore of Ponca City, Okla., Warren C. Platt, president of Petroleum News, Cleveland, O. and Baird H. Markham, president of the American petroleum industries committee of New York City.

JUST FOLKS

LOST JOYS RECOVERED.

We'd lost the knack of settling down
At evening when the lights were lit,
And shutting out the garish town
With all the noise and glare of it.
We'd come to think we had to roam
Since pleasure nightly called us out
The sweet and restful charm of home
We had forgotten all about.

We turned our backs upon our books,
Untouched we left them on the shelves;
With cold and stern forbidding looks
We turned our backs upon ourselves.
We thought we needed dance and song.
We fancied merriment to be
The sole possession of a throng
And so we sought gay company.

We thought that laughter must be loud;
That mirth was just a noisy show.
Amid the clamor of the crowd
We'd lost the joy of chuckling low.
Though arm in arm we came and went
Our minds had drifted far apart
For left alone in discontent
We sighed for conversation smart.

Well, we are back on firmer ground—
Together now at home we stay.
Within ourselves again we've found
The art of conversation gay
We've ceased to care to know the crowd
Since we have come ourselves to know.
We're trading noise and laughter loud
For chuckles—and it's better so!

Roosevelt's Slash in Cotton Industry Work Hours Put Into Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—President Roosevelt's order reducing the work week in the cotton garment industry from 40 to 36 hours became effective in 5,000 plants today. The recovery administration hoped 10,000 more would be employed.

It was the first slash in working hours by executive order. With the shorter work week went a 10 per cent pay increase to insure the industry's 165,000 workers the same weekly wage.

Temporarily exempted from the new working hours were 31 companies which obtained a restraining order from the District of Columbia Supreme court. The stay is effective until December 7 when a hearing will be held.

TO SUBMIT PROPOSAL ON THEATER TAXATION

An ordinance amending theater occupation taxes will be submitted to the council for first reading Monday by L. C. Oberlies. The bill is being prepared by Deputy City Attorney Chapman.

If approved by the council the amendment will reduce the occupation tax on theaters with 500 or less seating capacity from the present fee of $75 a year to $37.50. For those places with more than 500 seats the present $75 will be continued. Four theaters will be benefited by the lower fee.

DIET and HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "The Human Body"

TWINS OFTEN SUBJECT TO IDENTICAL DISEASE

A reader asks me whether there is any evidence to substantiate the belief that identical twins are liable to live about the same length of time, and whether or not they are subject to the same diseases.

Dr Clendening

There are many instances of twins who live exactly the same length of time. This, of course, provided they die of what is called "natural disease." In other words, disease which is not accidental. It is unfair to the argument to use the instance of a twin, who is for instance, killed in an automobile accident. An attack of pneumonia is quite as much an accident as an automobile injury. Even so, twins are remarkably subject even to the same infectious diseases.

The father of twins says, "Their general health is closely alike. Whenever one of them has an illness the other invariably has the same within a day or two. Such has been the case with whooping cough, chickenpox and measles, also with slight bilious attacks, which they have successively."

This, of course, is not particularly remarkable when twins are young, because they are liable to run around together and become exposed to the same diseases. But think of the case recounted by the French clinician Trousseau: "I attended twin brothers so extraordinarily alike that it was impossible for me to tell which was which. One of them I saw at Paris suffering from rheumatism ophthalmia. He said to me, 'At this instant my brother must be having ophthalmia like mine.' He showed me, a few days afterwards, a letter just received by him from his brother who was in Vienna. He wrote, "I have my ophthalmia; you must be having yours'."

In Dr. Otto Mohr's interesting book on "Heredity and Disease," lately published, there is a picture of twins, both of whom have hernia, one on the right and one on the left side.

QUESTION.

"I am a diabetic and have endeavored to study the subject of diabetes as thoroughly as a layman can do so. There is one particular point which puzzles me. The question is: Does insulin utilize carbohydrate or glucose? Practically all literature makes reference to 'carbohydrate tolerance,' but to my mind comes the thought that this may mean 'glucose tolerance.' Knowing as I do that all the carbohydrates, 58 per cent of the proteins and 10 per cent of the fats are converted into glucose, and that the ration of glucose to fatty acids must be kept at 1.0:1.2 to avoid a possible acidosis, I cannot understand the direct references to 'carbohydrates.' My own experience and tests have proved to me that the glucose derived from the proteins and fats will, without the aid of insulin, cause glycosuria."

ANSWER.

The terms "carbohydrate tolerance" and "glucose tolerance" are used interchangeably in medical literature. All carbohydrate and about half of the protein and 10 per cent of the fat are converted into glucose to be metabolized. In other words, the final chemical state of food for carbohydrate utilization is glucose. Therefore, we must say that insulin oxidizes glucose, and glucose is a form of carbohydrate. So far as insulin is concerned, the diet should be measured on grams of glucose, and a unit of insulin should utilize one to two grams of glucose.

BUDGET METHOD REFORMS URGED

U. S. Chamber Recommends More Active Centralized Control.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—Sweeping reforms in the government's budgetary methods will be advocated by the chamber of commerce of the United States.

The chamber announced this today after conducting a referendum in which its membership approved 13 proposals to improve the budget system.

One step recommended was "a more active centralized administrative control of expenditures." This would be obtained by "broadening the executive allotment system of funds so as to include all expenditures, ordinary and emergency, and strengthening it so as to avoid the necessity of deficiency appropriations."

This recommendation for broader control by the administrative branch of the government also suggested that "when feasible," expenditures be reduced below appropriations.

Among other proposals approved were:

That the executive budget be submitted to congress about March 1, instead of early January "in the belief that estimates would be more accurate if submitted nearer the beginning of the fiscal year."

That the president, in his budget estimates, designate activities he thinks should be discontinued.

That revenue estimates in the executive budget be so expanded as to present a complete revenue program.

That there should be a general accounting office directly under control of the executive.

Another proposal, that taxpayers be given the right to enjoin expenditures which would create deficiencies, failed to receive the two-thirds majority necessary for approval, the chamber announced.

Gasoline Is Boosted Nearly 3 Cents Here

Sutherland Says Outstate Prices Raised Accordingly by Code Program.

Motorists in Lincoln and this section of the state were paying about 3 cents more per gallon for gasoline Saturday morning as a state-wide code program to bring about "uniform, normal" prices went into effect.

For the Lincoln-Omaha freight area, the range of service station prices, announced by C. M. Sutherland, code spokesman, was: third grade gasoline, 16.9 cents; regular (leaded), 17.9 cents and ethyl, 19.9 cents.

Sutherland said outstate prices advanced accordingly, but any increased freight charges will be added to the retail price. In some sections of the state the prices probably will be 2½ cents higher than the Lincoln quotations.

Gasoline consumers who buy in tank wagon lots of 25 gallons or more, will pay 2 cents less per gallon than the above quotations, Sutherland stated. He said the margin of profit to the small retailer, however, has been reduced a half cent.

Stock Market Moves Into December Without Displaying Any Notable Strength Or Weakness

Closing Tone In Shares Is Steady

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—The stock market moved over into December today without displaying any notable strength or weakness. Some of the alcohols and amusement issues were in moderate demand, as were a few of the rails and specialties. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 440,000 shares.

The firmness of various theatrical equities was generally attributed to improved attendance which usually appears at this time of year. Better business for the distilleries, which is supposed to accompany the holidays, drew attention to this group.

Several of the rails showed a mildly better tone as gossip was heard in Wall street of a plan being discussed by the administration for co-ordination of the transportation industry as a means of aiding the harassed carriers.

Rye was the bellwether of the grains at Chicago, shorts in this cereal bidding the price up more than 3 cents a bushel. Wheat and corn also advanced a cent or more in fairly brisk trading. Cotton was not disposed to move far in either direction. Other commodities were a trifle irregular. Bonds were without any definite trend, although U. S. government securities were easier. Sterling sagged in foreign exchange dealings, but the gold currencies were somewhat higher.

Shares of Loew's and Radio preferred B, got up fractionally to new highs for the year. Similar gains were shown by American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania and McKesson & Robbins preferred.

Warner Bros. preferred, a 10-share trading unit, advanced nearly 6 points. U. S. Steel lost 2 points on a few transfers. Others, holding to a small fractional range, included U. S. Steel common, Bethlehem, General Electric, United Aircraft, Lorillard, Liggett & Myers B, American Tobacco B, Consolidated Gas, American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, Montgomery Ward, Socony Vacuum and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Most market analysts continued to be favorably inclined toward stocks, as a whole, although it was pointed out that technical dips and rallies can be expected from time to time notwithstanding the long-term trend may be upward.

The thought was expressed that bullish sentiment has not been exploited to the extent commonly witnessed at the culmination of an advance. Brokers reported that distribution, or profit taking, has been on a moderate scale.

While there has been some short selling in evidence recently, commission houses did not attach any especial significance to this phase of the present speculative movement.

Omaha Produce

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—Farmers received a little more for their cream due to the advance in butter prices on the local produce market today. However, butter cannot be advanced much more in the opinion of local creamery men, as consumers are backing away at present prices. Poultry prices to the country were unchanged. Eggs were weak, although generally unchanged, due to scarcity of fancy eggs.

POULTRY—No. 1 poultry, delivered: native springs, 10@11c a pound; Leghorn chickens, 2c to 3c less than native; roosters, 5@6c; heavy hens, 10@11c; light hens, 9@10c; Leghorn hens, 7@8c; turkeys, No. 1 young toms, 14 lbs., and over, 15@16c; No. 1 hen turkeys, 12@14c; young ducks, fat and full feathered, 8@9c; geese, f. f. f. 7@8c.

Dressed turkeys, 4c to 5c over live; dressed ducks and chickens, generally 2c to 3c over prices of live stock; geese generally 3c over.

EGGS—Fresh eggs, delivered in Omaha, graded basis: No. 1, 28@30c dozen; No. 2, 20@21c; cracks and off-grades, 15@16c; dozen; loose eggs, that is, without cases, ½c dozen less. Premium for specials, commonly known as hennery eggs, strictly fresh, large and uniform in size and color.

Current receipts, loss off, around $7 50, delivered in good cases.

BUTTERFAT—No. 1 cream delivered at receiving doors in Omaha, 27c; at country stations, eastern nebraska, 25c; direct shipper price, track, 25c; No. 2 cream, 2c less; no market value for stale, mouldy cream.

CREAMERY BUTTER—Extras, 1-lb. cartons, solid, 30½c; "best" butter, 29½c; ditto, 60-pound tubs, 29c; "good" butter in —pound cartonss, 28½c; quarters, ½c more: sweet butter, 2c more than salted.

MILK—Cash price for milk testing 3.5 butterfat, delivered. "Blended" price, $1 70 cwt.; surplus milk, $1 14 cwt.

Chicago Produce.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 1—(AP)—Butter was steady and eggs easy in the Chicago market today. Poultry was steady.

Bullish weather reports carried butter and egg futures higher yesterday, but profit taking later erased most of the advances. Butter closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher, eggs unchanged.

Reports of heavy snowfall over certain of the production states prompted active support of the markets, particularly for eggs, at the opening. Prices moved up ¼ to ½ cent, but in the last hour profit taking and new selling operations developed and the markets fell back. The four markets reported 10,000 fewer cases of eggs and 288,000 more of butter out of storage than last year.

November deliveries closed out for the year. November butter was offered down to 26¾ cents in the last few minutes. November eggs closed at 21¾ cents. A year ago the November butter contract closed at 18½ cents and November eggs at 14¾ cents. On a carlot basis butter closed $1,500 higher and eggs $840 higher.

Sales: Butter, 13 cars; eggs, 227.

TREASURY RECEIPTS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—The position of the treasury November 28 was:

Receipts, $60,068,003 54; expenditures, $40,130,250 58; balance, $1,602,255,454 17. Customs receipts for the month, $26,218,053 38.

Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $1,452,054,435 60; expenditures, $2,878,635,450 43 (including $1,500,637,190 78 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $1,426,571,023 83.

Gold assets, $8,111,990,092 28.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Turnover of the New York stock exchange for the year has crossed the 300,000,000-share mark. The volume for the 11 months, however, is the smallest for a comparable period since 1924. It contrasts, moreover, with a volume of more than a billion shares traded up to the end of November, 1929.

The past week was a blank as far as spot transactions in the spot sugar market were concerned. B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists, report not a single spot sale was recorded.

The October report of International Railways of Central America shows a balance of $57,356 compared with $35,890 in the same month last year.

Favorable dividend changes in the current week numbered 45 compared with 33 in the previous week, according to the Standard Statistics Co. Unfavorable changes numbered 5 against 10 in the preceding week.

Corn Prices Up 3 Cents at Chicago

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 1—(AP)—Skyrocketing of corn prices to a new height of $1 10 a bushel delivered in some sections helped to whirl the Chicago corn market up 3 cents today.

Other grains were swept steeply aloft with corn. To the surprise of the trade, no grain deliveries of any consequence were made on December contracts in the leading North American markets today. It had been expected liberal amounts of at least wheat and rye would be delivered.

Corn closed strong at the day's top, 2⅞ to 3 cents above yesterday's finish, May 91@91⅛c. Wheat firm, 1 cent to 1½ cents up, May 99⅝@¾c. Oats 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 35 cents.

With a virtual corn famine reported in the normally surplus farming area of the United States, all grain prices went upward quickly early today. Every future delivery of corn reached a new top price record for the season. Opening ½ to 1½ cents higher, May 89½@¾c, corn afterward held near the initial limits. Wheat started at ⅛ to ¾ cent gain, May 99⅛@¼c, and then climbed further.

Notice among corn-traders was taken of a statement by a leading crop expert pointing out that corn prices are now the highest where usually they are the cheapest. The expert emphasized that, for the week ending today, the average price of corn at country points in Kansas has been $1.01 a bushel, compared with a 10-year average of 56 cents for that state. Another stimulating factor was word that cash corn in Oklahoma City had gone up 6 cents a bushel overnight.

A rush of commission house buying found the Chicago corn market practically bare of offerings. An almost immediate upturn of 2 cents a bushel ensued. Profit taking caused a reaction of about a cent, but rallies followed soon. There were no deliveries whatever on December corn contracts and next to none on any kind of grain, although today was the first opportunity for tenders.

Wheat and other cereals advanced with corn and as a result of strength shown by the Liverpool wheat market. Expected big deliveries of wheat at Liverpool failed to appear.

Provisions paralleled the rise of grains. Lard outdid the season's high price records.

About mid-session, wheat was ¾ to 1 cent higher compared with yesterday's finish and corn was 1¼ to 1¾ cents up.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 24 cars, a week ago 71, and a year ago 69.

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Bearish developments in the foreign markets over the holiday had a depressing influence on the local market and speculative holdings of December grain futures were liquidated as trading was resumed yesterday. Leading foreign markets were weaker Thursday and Liverpool prices were lower again yesterday, wheat showing a loss of about 3 cents a bushel since Wednesday. Wheat speculators gave up their December futures for May futures. Corn news continued bullish and that grain remained firm.

Heavy rain which was regarded as a menace to wheat harvesting in Argentina early in the week, was followed by more favorable weather conditions, and indications were that the harvest would continue without interruption. A minimum price of 52 cents a bushel for the new wheat crop was announced by the Argentine government.

Corn retained its leadership in the market as bullish reports continued to come from the producing regions. Foreign developments had little influence on the situation so far as this grain was concerned. For several weeks the country has been quoting its own prices for corn and the local market has followed the trend.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—There was little trading activity on the curb exchange today and prices of most issues moved within a narrow range. Utilities were generally lower, metals were slightly irregular, and specialties and industrials were fairly steady.

Major activity was again centered in the utilities, but speculative sentiment was sufficiently evenly divided to confine fluctuations to the minor fractional type. American Gas yielded ½, American Super Power gained that much, while Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service held unchanged. Niagara Hudson was inaltive.

Miscellaneous shares gaining ¼ to ½ point included American Cyanamid "B," Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Parker Rust Proof and Pioneer Gold. Tobacco and allied stocks made an extreme gain of 8¾ points and Mayflower advanced 5 on a small turnover. Other issues selling about 1 point higher included Sherwin Williams, Pan-American Airways and Jones & Laughlin. Oil issues were mixed. Creole lost a fraction and International was unchanged. Swift & Co. declined fractionally.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Listed bonds continued hesitant in quiet week-end trading today.

Having returned from the low levels of September almost to the peaks established last July, the market appeared to have run into some resistance.

Treasury issues for the most part eased off to show trifling losses and encouraged a little selling in other top-grade bonds. On the whole, losses were small and were offset by modest gains.

The inflow of gold from abroad and gains in bank deposits were considered favorable for the bond market from the longer-term viewpoint. Highest grade issues, however, had risen to levels which made buyers more cautious in their bids ding.

Allegheny s got up more than a point and advances of fractions were recorded in Santa Fe general s, Columbia Gas I Electric 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, International Telephone 5s and Postal Telegraph 5s. Among issues showing small losses were American & Foreign Power 5s, American Telephone 5s, Chile Copper 5s, Erie 5s and Texas Corp. 5s.

Foreign bonds likewise were mixed and quiet.

Liverpool Wheat Futures.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 1—(AP)—Wheat futures closed firm: Dec. 70⅝; Mch. 76½ May 79 ¼; Jly. 81⅜; exchange $4.97½.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Dec. 1—(AP)—COTTON was generally quiet today with some week end liquidation or realizing absorbed by covering and trade buying within a comparatively narrow range. March contracts sold off from $12.64 to $12.58 and closed at $12.59, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 2 to 5 points.

Cotton futures closed steady, 2-5 lower. Dec., 12 46; Jan. 12.52; Mch., 12.59@60; May 12.59@60; July 12.51@53 Oct., 12.24@25. Spot quiet: middling 12.75.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw sugar was unchanged today as far as the spot Cuban price was concerned with holders still asking 3.08½ for Cubas to be used in December and 2.55 for January melt. Refiners, however, were uninterested in this combination offer although they continued to buy at 2.55 for sugar for January use and sales were confirmed of around 70,000 bags of Cuban at this level. In addition there was a sale confirmed of 4,000 bags of Cubas from store here by an operator at 2.80.

Figures held generally steady on further covering and trade buying with final prices 1 point lower on December, but net unchanged to 2 points higher on later deliveries. Sales were 7,500 tons.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.50 for fine granulated, but the undertone was unsettled and demand was light and limited to nearby requirements only.

Mercury Rises After Season's Low 18 Degrees

The fog that descended on Lincoln early Saturday morning bit into the vitals of the thermometer and pushed the mercury down to 18 degrees at 8 o'clock, the coldest temperature recorded here this season. Other sections of the state were also in the grip of exceedingly cold temperatures.

The fog, which seemed to be entirely local, slowly lifted during the morning until the sun was shining brightly at about noon. It was the first time in a week that the sky was cloudless here. As a result the mercury slid rapidly up to 29 degrees at 12:30 o'clock and was still rising.

No precipitation or snow was reported this morning. Many points reported cloudy skies and many reported clear. A white blanket of snow from the earlier days in the week still covered many parts of the state. A considerable number of roads were blocked by the drifting snows.

In central Nebraska, the Associated Press said, residents were digging themselves out of the drifts of Wednesday night's snow. The sun was aiding them in their task.

Postal Receipts In Lincoln Increased

Total For November Ahead Of Last Year, While Those For Eleven Months Are Higher.

Postal receipts for November in Lincoln this year were $3,956.30 greater than for the same month a year ago, Postmaster Trev E. Gillaspie announced Saturday morning. The increase sent the 11-month total $21,570.95 ahead of the same period a year ao.

The November receipts this year totalled $69,743.73 as compared to $65,787.43 for November, 1933. The grand total for the year thus far is $683,190.79 while a year ago it was $661,619.84.

Lincoln Family Hurt In Carroll, Ia. Crash

CARROL, Ia., Dec. 1—(AP)—Mrs. E. O. Inbody of Lincoln, Nebr., son, Gerald and daughter Ruth, are in a hospital here recovering from injuries suffered Thursday night when the Inbody car collided with one in which Mr. and Mrs. Pete Bower of Carroll, were riding. Mrs. Inbody and her children suffered scalp wounds as did Mrs. Bower. Mr. Inbody and Mr. Bower, with five other children of the Inbody's, escaped injury.

Mr. Inbody, 2811 Everett street, plant superintendent of Smith's Home dairy, left Lincoln about a week ago for a vacation at the home of his brother in Carroll, Iowa.

Plan To Reorganize Railway Commission

Plans for reorganizing the state railway commission after January 1 were further revealed Saturday with the announcement by Commissioner Floyd Bollen that Hobart L. Blackledge, jr., Kearney attorney, has been offered the post of general counsel for the commission.

The commission at present has no legal staff, an assistant attorney general serving as counsel.

Bollen said that he and Will M. Maupin, democratic commissioner-elect offered Blackledge the new post and that Blackledge took the offer under consideration. Blackledge is president of the Nebraska Young Democratic clubs.

To Be Public Defender.

Bollen's announcement follows a declaration several days ago in which he outlined plans for creating the post of "public defender" as soon as the commission passes to democratic control with Maupin's inauguration. The post of general counsel would carry with it the duties of a public defender, Bollen said, giving those who file complaints with the commission adequate legal advice when they are unable to retain attorneys to represent them. The general counsel would also co-operate with the assistant attorney general assigned the commission when it is involved in court action.

One of Blackledge's first duties, if he accepts the offer, will be to draft a bill for submission to the legislature revising present statutes defining the powers and duties of the commission and providing for their enlargement, Bollen said. Maupin's views coincide with his, Bollen said.

The new commission probably will encounter considerable opposition in getting its program through the legislature, in view of hostility shown by past legislatures to the commission. A democratic legislature and a democratic commission may alter the situation.

NAVY ELEVEN DEFEATS ARMY ON SOGGY GRID

tackled by Beall. An attempted lateral went wrong, as Pratt tossed high to Borries and the Navy ace barely recovered the ball on his own 45 for a loss of 8 yards. Clark's punt rolled to Army's 15 as the Cadets took no chances with the slippery oval.

Buckler kicked on second down and Borries gave a brilliant exhibition of sidestepping in the mud as he ran the punt back 16 to Army's 36. Pratt gained 4 yards, but Borries lost his interference and was thrown for a 2-yard loss.

Clark bucked center for 3 yards and then punted out of bounds on Army's 1-yard line.

Buckler stood at the extremity of the end zone and got his punt away nicely. Borries took it on Army's 35 but was downed by a swarm of Cadet tacklers on 33. Borries skidded 3 yards through the line and picked up 2 more in a thrust at Army's left tackle. On a "shovel pass," Borries to Clark, the latter got away off his own right tackle and dashed to Army's 16 for first down.

On a short lateral from Clark, Borries picked up 5 and then fought his way Borries was thrown for a 5-yard loss by Clifford, Cadet center. Navy decided to try for placement field goal, with Slade Cutter doing the kicking. It was fourth down, with 5 to go, and the ball was directly in front of the uprights.

With the ball held on Army's 19-yard line, Cutter got his foot squarely into the soggy ball and booted it between the uprights for a field goal—his fourth of the season—and gave Navy a 3-0 lead.

Clifford kicked off for Army and Clark made a nice return up the sidelines, running 18 yards to Navy's 33 as the sun broke through the clouds. Pratt picked up 2 yards off tackle and then was replaced at quarterback by Lee. Borries drove through guard for 2 more and Clark then got off a punt to Grohs, who slipped and went down on Army's 25.

On the first play, Buckler tripped over one of his own teammates and failed to gain.

The period ended at this point and the teams changed position with Navy leading, 3 to 0.

SECOND PERIOD.

Buckler kicked out of bounds on Navy's 34-yard line as the second period started. The Cadets made some substitutions, Smith replacing Brearly at guard, Vincent subbing for Clifford at center and True taking the place of Grove in the backfield.

Borries gained barely 2 yards in as many plays and Clark punted to Army's 28. Pratt went back to quarterback for Navy in place of Lee.

Stancook fumbled but recovered for a 4-yard loss, then made only a yard at center. The Middies were offside on the play, however, and it was Army's ball on the Cadet 29. On punt formation, the pass to Buckler was so low he could not attempt to kick and the Army ace was downed by Cutter on the 26. Texas Jack then got away a good punt to Navy's 35.

Borries was stopped twice and Clark booted to Army's 45. Buckler was dropped for a yard loss but on the next play Navy was offside and penalized 5 yards. Buckler limped out of a scrimmage and was replaced by Simons. Meanwhile Schacht took the place of Captain Burns in the Navy line.

Simons drove 4 yards and Stancook then found a hole for 5 yards and a first down on Navy's 41. Stillman, Army's star running guard, was hurt on the play and was replaced by Nechason.

Simons slid 2 yards on a power play through Navy's left tackle, but he failed to gain on a sweep around Navy's left side. Simons then tried a short pass over the line but it was intercepted by Borries on Navy's 30.

Borries fumbled on a line smash but recovered and lost only a foot. Pratt then fumbled and the ball was recovered by True, Navy's back, on Navy's 34.

Stancook was stopped but Simons broke off his own right tackle for 8 yards.

Stancook again was stopped a foot short of first down and the left side of the Navy line held firm as Simons struck it. The Army back failed to gain more than six inches and it was Navy's ball on its own 25 on downs.

Borries, after finding a stone wall at the right, burst through the other side on the next play for 5. Zabriskie substituted for Morrell in the Navy line. Tromber, replaced Edwards at end for Army and Preston substituted for Shuler on the other Cadet flank.

Clark's punt was run back 75 by Grohs on Navy's 45. Simons, in two rushes, picked up 5 before the gun barked for half time, with Navy still clinging to its 3-0 margin.

THIRD PERIOD.

Equipped with fresh uniforms, both teams raced out under lowering clouds for the third period. Grohs, Simons, True and Stancook comprised the Army backfield. The Navy started the same lineup it sent into action at the start.

Cutter kicked off from the Navy and Grohs ran it back 18 to Army's 32. Grohs and Simons gained only 2 yards together and Simons punted to Borries, who was pushed out of bounds on Navy's 41.

Borries was ganged on two fake reverses, gaining 3 yards. Clark punted high and out of bounds on Army's 30.

After two ineffectual cracks at the Navy's center and right wing, Simons punted to Borries, who was downed on Navy's 36. Borries and Pratt skidded 3 yards, after which Clark punted out on Army's 31.

The Cadets lost 5 yards when Simons fumbled and recovered. Simons recovered 4 yards in an off-tackle thrust., then picked up a bad pass from center and got away to Navy's 35. Borries twisted 7 yards before he was brought down. Clark failed to gain and Navy punted to Grohs, who was downed on Army's 35.

True raced 5 yards off right tackle and Simons quick-kicked to Navy's 13, where Borries fought his way to the 27. Grove replaced True in Army's backfield. Borries ploughed 3 yards in two line smashes. Clark got away a punt to Grohs who was downed at midfield. Army, getting desperate, tried its second pass and again it was intercepted as Tom King grabbed Simon's long toss on Navy's 35.

Five navy substitutes were rushed into the game, Bull and Chester at the ends, Baird at left tackle, Schaffer and Vogel at the guard positions.

Borries, on a reverse, got away for 8 yards around left end and then made first down on Navy's 45. Taking a chance through the air, Borries passed diagonally over the line but Simons intercepted the ball and ran to Navy's 35 as the tide changed and the period ended. Score: Navy 3; Army 0.

On the first play of the final period, Simons raced around Navy's left end to the 27, a gain of 8 yards. He was stopped at Navy's right guard but Stancook smashed within inches of first down and Simons then plunged to Navy's 24, on fourth down, to make the necessary distance. Mandelkorn replaced Bull at end for Navy.

Simons bucked off his right guard for 2 yards. Simons tried a flat pass over center and it grounded. On another pass by Simons, wide and to the left, Navy's Clark leaped up and intercepted the ball on Navy's 15.

Borries picked up 3 yards in two plays. Clark got away a sensational punt, standing on his own 12-yard line. The ball sailed over the head of Grohs and rolled to Army's 12—an aggregate distance of 75 yards. Grohs brought the ball back to Army's 22.

Navy stopped two Cadet plays and got a big break when Simons' poor punt skidded out of bounds on Army's 34. The Midshipmen thus gained over 50 yards on the exchange.

After losing 3 yards, Borries gained 8 through center. Clark drove to Army's 26 but his punt was blocked and recovered on the next play by Miller. Miller ran 12 yards before he was brought down on the Navy's 46.

Meyer, substitute Army back fumbled after breaking through the Navy's line, and Clark recovered for the Navy on the latter's 42.

Borries lost 2 yards. Clark punted high to Grohs who was downed on Army's 30. Meyer was tackled for a 2-yard loss.

Grohs got back the distance on an end run and a pass Meyer to Grohs, gained only a yard. Meyer punted to Borries, who sidestepped and ran out of bounds at midfield after an 8-yard runback.

Borries smacked into the line twice, gaining 3 yards. Clifford took Vincent's place and Preston relieved Shuler at end. Burns returned to the Navy line at guard, replacing Schaffer.

Clark's high punt was fumbled by Grohs and recovered for Navy by Tom King on Army's 12. Navy was penalized 5 yards for delaying the game after Clark backed to the 10. Borries booted 2 yards in [illegible] his own left tackle. The game ended with the plays, with the Navy victorious, 3 to 0.

MISS STEELE TO BE TURNED FREE

BERLIN, Dec. 1—(AP)—Douglas Jenkins, United State consul general, was informed today by the Prusiasn ministry of justice that Miss Isobel Lillian Steele of Hollywood, Cal., who has been held in Moabit prison four months, will be expelled from Germany because investigators had revealed she is not "a professional spy."

Secretary Freisler of the Prussian ministry of justice said the government would ask the department of justice to issue the expulsion order.

Freisler revealed, however, that the authorities regard the case of Richard Roiderer of Chicago, who has been in prison for the last five months in Bavaria, as more serious.

It was said that he might be tried for espionage, since it was alleged that military notes were found in his possession. The United States consulate is doing its utmost to speed up the investigations into his case but doubt was expressed as to whether his release could be obtained.

The American consulate had been trying for many weeks to ascertain the exact charges against Miss Steele and Roiderer, but without much success.

It had been stated unofficially that Miss Steele faced accusations involving espionage. She had been studying music in Berlin. She was born in Canada, but had become a naturalized citizen of the United State.

One report attributed Miss Steele's difficulties to her acquaintance with a man described as "an influential German." This man was said to have reported her confidence to his Nazi superiors.

Colorado Man's Leg Broken When Hit on Highway Near Here

Struck by a car as he wiped the front from the windshield of his own machine, Clifford Rinker, 25, of Akron, Colo., suffered a fractured left leg and scalp lacerations Saturday morning 8 miles east on O street.

Although the driver of the car which struck Rinker stopped after the accident, his name was not learned. Rinker was first taken to the office of Dr. V. S. Barkey, then removed to Bailey's sanitorium, and later taken to the home of a cousin, Dale Voller, 6835 Colby street.

Rinker, accompanied by his wife and parents, was en route to southern Missouri where his father was to receive health treatments. The car driven by the unknown motorist was said to have sideswiped the Rinker machine. Rinker was knocked to the edge of the pavement but was not run over.

Fire Destroys Farm Home of Alba Brown

Fire destroyed a two-story frame farmhouse and garage at the farm of Alba Brown about 7 miles northwest of Lincoln early Friday morning. Brown and his wife escaped with only a small amount of clothing. The loss is covered by insurance.

The fire was thought to have been caused by a defective flue.

Brown arose about 2 o'clock Friday morning to stoke the furnace and when he awoke at 5 o'clock, the house was full of smoke.

Raymond firemen were called, but the fire was beyond control. They did, however, save a nearby barn.

MATHEMATICIANS CLOSE MEETING

Scientific Topics Are Discussed Before Midwest Group.

Three short discussions and a one hour lecture Saturday morning completed the two day midwest conference of the American Mathematical society, meeting at the University of Nebraska for their 317th regular meeting.

Prof. A. T. Craig of the University of Iowa, discussed "On the Distribution of a Certain Product Moment"; F. S. Harper of the University of Nebraska, gave a report on "Finite Geometries." Prof. G. A. Bliss, of the University of Chicago, told of "The Problem of Bolza in the Calculus of Variations."

Dean E. B. Stouffer of the University of Kansas, and Prof. A. J. Kempner of the University of Colorado, were in charge of the Saturday morning session, when it was announced that the next meeting would be held at Pittsburgh during the Christmas vacation.

Evening Meeting.

Friday evening the delegates met at the Cornhusker hotel and were entertained by informal discussions on scientific subjects by the various members. Prof. Gaba was in charge of arrangements.

Friday afternoon sessions of the the 317th regular meeting of the society were devoted to short papers by members and a lecture by Prof. A. J. Kempner of the University of Colorado, "On Complex Roots of Algebraic Equations." About 50 mathematicians gathered at room 201, Social Sciences building, for the afternoon meeting.

Representatives of seven states—Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Colorado, South Dakota, Illinois and Wisconsin—were here for the meeting. Short technical papers were presented by A. P. Cowgill, University of Nebraska; Prof. M. A. Basoco, University of Nebraska; Prof. C. C. Camp, University of Nebraska; Prof. A. A. Albert, University of Chicago; Miss M. G. Humphreys, University of Chicago; Garrett Birkhoff, Harvard university; G. D. Nichols, University of Arkansas; K. S. Ghent, University of Chicago; Dr. S. M. Robertson, University of Chicago; Prof. E. T. Bell (in collaboration with Prof. Basoco), California Institute of Technology; Prof. H. J. Ettlinger, University of Texas, and Dr. Solomon Kullback, Washington, D. C.

Presiding for the afternoon session were Prof. W. C. Brenke, University of Nebraska, and Prof. G. A. Bliss, University of Chicago. Prof. Mark H. Ingraham, University of Wisconsin, secretary of the society, was in charge of program arrangements.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By JOHN HIX

Ask any school boy how to find the length of the circumference of a circle and he will tell you to multiply the diameter by pi, which is correct except that nobody has ever been able to find out the value of pi.

Approximations are used in all engineering and mathematical work. For simple problems 3 1-7 is near enough, more generally a value of 3.1416 is used, and in cases where greater accuracy is required the value of pi is considered 3.141.59. Even then it is not accurate, and no investigator has ever found the exact value. Therefore the seemingly simple problem of finding the circumference of a one-inch circle is still unsolved, and so far as we know it is one that cannot be solved. The value of pi, which is the ratio of the circumference to the diameter, was carried out to 707 places by Shanks in 1873—and still it did not come out even!

This gap in mathematical knowledge is no hindrance, however, to engineering or science, because if the value of pi is carried out to only 10 places the error is so minute that the finest tools cannot detect it. For example, if the value of pi is taken as 3.1415926535 and used to determine the circumference of a circle 200 feet across the error will be less than one millionth of an inch.

For centuries man has investigated the relation of the circumference to the diameter. Earliest data shows that three times the diameter was once considered correct for the circumference.

BRITAIN AND U. S. AGAIN OBJECT TO JAPAN OIL TRUST

Diplomatic Moves Regarded as Having Entered Tense Stage.

TOKYO, Dec. 1— (AP) —The United States and Great Britain today, for the third time in five months, had concertedly notified the Japanese government of their objection to the Manchoukuo oil monopoly in diplomatic representations.

It was officially admitted today that Sir Robert Clive, the British ambassador, gave a note on the subject to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota November 24, and, although the United States embassy and the foreign office declined to give out information, it was authoritatively learned that Ambassador Joseph C. Grew of the United States delivered a similar note to the foreign minister's residence this week-end.

Situation More Tense.

With these diplomatic moves, the Anglo-American oil controversy against Japan was regarded by observers as having entered a more tense stage.

The British note, which was vigorously worded, reasserted Great Britain's contention that the monopoly violates the treaty rights of the open-door principle of China, and insisted that Japan cannot escape responsibility for actions of Manchoukuo.

The contests of the American note were not disclosed but was believed similar to the British protest.

A high official said the latest diplomatic moves have not shaken Japan's refusal to admit responsibility for the actions in Manchoukuo.

didn't succeed so I placed the letter in the safe deposit box."

"And then used it to threaten my father," offered Silver. "That's where you slipped up."

"I admit it," returned Marian ruefully, and wondered if the D. A. would ever arrive. What was going on at the city jail that would take him all of this time? She glanced at the clock. It was nearly midnight.

"As I said before, you forced yourself into my affairs. I've put up with it too long, now I intend to force you out.

"Ian, Lon is down in the city jail, held on a charge of robbery. That means a long term in San Quentin, for we have the proof. He was caught in the act of rifling the safe. We have good circumstantial evidence that he had reasons for doing this. He raised a pay check and Dad kept that check to make him behave.

"Now if you'll listen to reason, I can telephone Dad and have Lon back here, free."

"How?"

"Dad can say he sent Lon down there after important papers, and forgot to give him the combination, or had given him the combination . . . that part doesn't matter. It's up to him to swear to the charge."

"Hasn't he already done so?" Marian asked with sudden interest.

"No, they are waiting for him down there and he's waiting for me to telephone him your decision."

"My decision on what?"

"This. The future of the Hondons and the McSwains depends upon you. Without the information Cliff holds you can't prosecute father. Cliff won't give that information unless you go to him and tell the truth of what happened that night in Nevada and at the hospital.

"I want you to sit down and write a letter to Cliff. I want you to tell him that you have been doing something you regret because you were jealous of me. I want you to tell him that your husband fell in love with me and in an effort to discredit me, you began spreading a story which a rejected suitor of mine, Max Hamlin, had put you up to; that it was you and not me, who had sent that message, to the hospital.

"I want you to tell him to believe no one who approaches him with this story, that you are sorry you did it. That I sent your husband back to you and you're trying to repay me for my kindness by retracting the story . . . the lie you told."

"But supposing," Marian continued, "we have talked to the authorities and they intend starting an investigation of the East Brazos school."

"You haven't," said Silver with assurance, "we have had you both watched since the moment you let father know you had that letter. I can give you a detailed account of every move you've made."

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at St. Teresa's Catholic church, Thirty-sixth and J streets. Rev. R D. Goggins officiating. The Altar Society of St. Teresa's parish is requested to meet at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening at Splain, Schnell & Griffiths chapel for recitation of the Rosary. The body is at Splain, Schnell & Griffiths.

France Challenges Germany on Peace

Laval Calls on Hitler to Translate His Words Into Deeds.

PARIS, Dec. 1—(AP)—A French challenge to Reichsfuehrer Hitler to "translate his words of peace into deeds" was carried direct to him today by his personal emissary, Gen. Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

He returned to Berlin from the French capital after hearing Pierre Laval, France's foreign minister, call upon Germany in a speech to the chamber of deputies to make known whether it "accepts or shuns" the duty of maintaining the present frontiers of "anxious Europe."

France, Laval warned, "will not shrink from her obligations in the situation created by Germany's rearmament." Laval suggested that the way in which Germany could prove her desire for peace would be by signing an eastern European pact for mutual assistance. This project, commonly known as the "eastern Locarno pact," has long been one of France's aims in foreign relations.

Von Ribbentrop published a statement defending German armaments, declaring: "An army, in the present state of international relations, is an attribute of adult nations. Have not we the right to be an adult nation too without being suspected of bellicose intentions?

Dionne Quintuplet Girls Have Quintupled Weight During Six Months Life

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 1—(AP)—The five Dionne girls, who amazed the world by making a joint appearance into it six months and three days ago, are now engaged in establishing weight raising records.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the country physician who brought them into the world and has supervised their care closely ever since, let it be known today that each of the quintuplets has practically quintupled her weight.

This amazing performance, he pointed out, is to be compared with the fact that children ordinarily double their birth-weights by the end of their first six months of life.

Yvonne, for example, weighed exactly 12 pounds yesterday. Her weight officially recorded seven days after birth was 2 pounds, 6¼ ounces. Her weight is slightly more than five times the original recording. Each of her sisters has made proportionate gains.

Annette weighs 11 pounds, 11 ounces, Cecile 11 pounds, 6 ounces. Emile 9 pounds, 13 ounces, and Marie 9 pounds, 8 ounces. Their total weight is 54 pounds 6 ounces.

Dr. Morse, Former N. U. Faculty Member, Weds

PEARL RIVER, N. Y., Dec. 1—(AP)—Dr. Withrow Morse, biochemist, of Pearl River, N. Y., and Mrs. Mayroe Sater Scott, daughter of Judge John E. Sater, of Columbus, O., were married here Friday. The Rev. Dr. E. Treat, pastor of the Congregational church at Spring Valley, N. Y., performed the ceremony. The two had no attendants.

Dr. Morse, a native of Dayton, O., formerly was professor of biochemistry in the medical departments of the University of Nebraska, and the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. and Mrs. Morse will make their home in Pearl River.

Blowup Looms In High Councils of Baseball

Landis Intends Quit If Dog-Racing Gets Foothold In Boston

BY BILL CORUM.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1—(INS)—Unless Judge Emil Fuchs, owner-president of the Boston Braves, abandons his present plan of opening a greyhound track at Braves Field next summer, Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis will resign his post as czar of baseball.

Closer Than Hat.

The information comes from a source closer to Landis than that old felt hat he wore until the crown and brim sagged apart and decided to go their separate ways. Then the judge got a new hat. And if so much as one greyhound chases one mechanical rabbit around the sacred precincts of Braves Field next spring, baseball is going to have to get a new high commissioner.

The blow-off, in fact, is likely to come much sooner than that —likely to come any day now and in all probability will be precipitated by this exclusive story. The Judge (Landis, not Fuchs) is disposed to make an issue of it right now.

Within the past 10 days the commissioner has stumped into the offices of at least two prominent Chicagoans with whom he is intimate and demanded in his brusque way:

"What do you think of baseball and dog racing?"

"I think," replied one of these gentlemen, "that baseball is a great sport and that dog racing is a racket."

Humph; Then Another Humph.

"Humph," humphed the judge, "so do I. Judge Fuchs, who owns the Boston team in the National league, wants to put a dog track in Braves field under the provisions of the new Massachusetts mutuel bill, legalizing horse and dog racing Fuchs has lost a lot of money in Boston and feels that this is his only chance to get it back.

"I am fond of Fuchs personally, like him as well as anybody in baseball, and would like to see him recoup his losses, but baseball and dog racing are a different breed of cats (In his excitement, the judge was mixing his metapho... a trifle) and they'll never be associated so long as I'm at the head of baseball. I'll quit! I'll quit!"

Whereupon the judge snatched his overcoat and barged out, shaking his white head like a terrier at a porcupine hole.

That Boston Situation.

The Boston situation, in a nutshell, is this: At the same time the mutuel bill was voted, former Mayor Curley of Boston was elected governor of the commonwealth. Judge Fuchs and Governor Curley have been intimate personal friends for years and the judge was one of the new governor's most enthusiastic and persistent campaigners.

Permission to operate a dog track in Allston, where Braves Field is located in easy access to the heart of Boston, is the next thing to having carte blanche to go ahead and print your own money. With the greyhounds coming to Boston for the first time—and with Boston having proved at Rockingham and Narragansett that if there's one thing it likes to do better than bet, it is bet some more—the privilege of running such a track would be like running a mint on a 24-hour basis.

Plenty Possibilities.

Braves Field is big and ideally suited for the sport, and just think of the novelties Judge Fuchs could work out between big league baseball in the afternoon and dog racing at night. He might even run off a few heats between innings with Umpire Bill Klem as presiding steward. He could have the greyhounds chase "Rabbit" Maranville in the hurdle race. Or he might put up the Ford Frick Gold Cup for greyhounds under three years, or offer the Judge Steve McKeever Handicap for older and gayer dogs.

Unfortunately for this project, Babe Ruth, prospective manager of the Braves, has grown more sedate and sober with the years. But what a cinch it would have been a few seasons back to have the Babe playing with and managing your team in the afternoon on the same field where you ran a dog track by night. It wouldn't have been necessary to pay him off by check at all, but just let him trade out his salary in mutuel tickets.

Makes the Money Fast.

Oh, that dog racing racket is honey-money all right, as far as it goes. I never have personally known one to go longer than three or four seasons in succession in the same spot. What's the sense? By that time the mutuel machines have even ground the dogs into frankfurters.

No matter how honestly a dog track is run—and there is no sense in running one any way except honestly, since even when they are square dice, they are faster than the fellow with the walnut shells and the little pea. So, I repeat, no matter how honestly a dog track is run, it can never be anything except a racket.

Men have grown rich racing greyhounds and whippets from the White City in London to the other side of the world in Australia. But there is no permanent health in dog racing for any community, a fact amply borne out by the past history of the sport.

Throws In With Landis.

Would dog racing counteract baseball's war on gambling:

Now I have no better friends among the moguls than Judge Fuchs and the Judge, in turn, has no better friend among the sports writers, but in this situation I'd have to put in 100 per cent with the other judge—Landis.

I have been watching and, on rare occasions, betting on dog races almost from the time Old Man Smith first invented the mechanical rabbit. If there is a track handy, when the guy at the loud speaker yells, "there goes Rusty," I am apt to be among those present and accounted for—and with a mutuel ticket in either fist.

But when Landis said that baseball and dog racing wouldn't mix, he was saying a mouthful, Queenie. They can't mix. They never could.

How could any club owner give a fan the old heave-ho from the grandstand for betting at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and at the same time invite him to come out and bet right down to his shirt at 8:30?

Professional gambling and its hand-maiden, "the fix", had baseball cracking and groaning on the rocks of diaster once. Then such men as Landis, John Heydler, Ernest Barnard, Judge Fuchs, Jake Ruppert, Charley Stoneham, Ed Barrow, Sam Breadon, et al., came along to wage a relentless war on gambling on baseball in the parks where the games are played.

Baseball Fights Gambling.

They haven't stopped gambling altogether, even in their parks, but they have checked and fought it vigorously and they have kept the game clean. Judge Fuchs has invested and lost a lot of money in baseball. He is most assuredly entitled to a run for his white alley, but he is not entitled to a greyhound run for it at the expense of the cleanest and best run professional sports business of all.

It is my personal opinion that Ruth will do a great deal toward reviving the wilting fortunes of the Braves in Boston. Even if he doesn't, there must be some other way out for the owners of the Boston team. I have nothing against dog racing in its proper place, whereever that may be. It plainly is not in a major league ball park and if Judge Landis should lose this battle and quit on this issue, here is one baseball writer who would have to go with him.

Americans at End Japanese Invasion

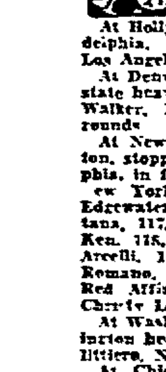

UTSUNOMIYA, Japan, Dec. 1—(AP)—Babe Ruth & company ended a Japanese invasion today by drubbing the Nippon All-Stars, 14 to 5, before a baseball crowd of 12,000. After the game the squad entrained for Kobe where they will embark on the liner Empress of Canada for Manila and a couple more exhibition games. Score by innings:

TENNESSEE FILES BID FOR BIERMAN

Southern School Offers Gophers' Coach Round Salary Boost.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 1—(AP)—To the list of assertedly possible successors to Major Robert R. Neyland as head football coach at the University of Tennessee, the Tennessean today added the name of Bernie Bierman, now coach of the championship Minnesota Gophers.

BERNIE BIERMAN

The paper said it had been reported that Tennessee is offering Bierman a $10,000 a year salary to take over the job which Neyland leaves with the close of this season to go to Panama on an Army assignment. It said that Bierman's present salary is $7,500.

The Tennessean said that "Bierman is almost certain to be the next mentor at Knoxville," citing the reported $2,500 increase offer as a major consideration.

Bierman is the second coach of a championship eleven to be talked of in connection with the Tennessee position. Frank Thomas of Alabama, recently was mentioned as a possible successor Neyland, but N. W. Dougherty, U. T. director of athletics, denied any offer had been made Thomas.

Carnera In Ring To Mix With Campolo

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 1—(AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian man-mountain, rules an odds-on choice to whip Victorio Campolo of Argentina in their 12-round bout here tonight.

Inaugurating a come-back campaign he hopes eventually will lead him back to the world's heavyweight championship, Carnera will have a 35-pound pull in the weights and figures to beat Campolo just as decisively as he did in New York three years ago. Big Primo won by knockout in two rounds on that occasion.

Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzcudun will be interested spectators. Uzcudun will fight Primo here next month and Loughran expects to face the big Italian again in January.

STARS SHINING DOWN 'BAMA WAY

Dixie Tide In Again This Year With Team of Truly Greats.

BY T. M. DAVENPORT

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Dec. 1—(AP)—A lyricist recently wrote "Stars Fell on Alabama," but in football in the last decade stars have risen in Alabama.

On New Year's day in Pasadena's Rose Bowl, the fourth Alabama team in 10 years will defend the gridiron prestige of that vast section east of the Rocky mountains, and new stars will glitter. Gone are Hubert, Gillis and Brown of 1925; Caldwell, Winslett and Enis of 1926, but omnipresent are the stars in Howell, Hutson, Lee, Smith and others who have made Alabama's 1934 campaign one of victory.

The first Crimson invasion of Rose Bowl on New Year's day, 1926, raised the stock of Alabama football and the south in general.

Trailing by two touchdowns at the half, Alabama, led by the wildly driving Pooley Hubert, rose in the second half and won as spectacular a victory as any ever did to nose out Washington's Huskies, 20 to 19.

New Stars Scintillate.

A year later, although Hubert and Grant Gillis, who fired the 50-yard pass to Johnny Mack Brown that won the game, were gone, new stars had risen. Again Alabama traveled west, this time to meet Stanford's Indians. The Indians went to work and ran over a first period touchdown.

The fighting spirit of Alabama had been forgotten, but Herschell Caldwell, "Red" Barnes, "Wu" Winslett and Ben Enis had not forgotten the 1926 rally.

After fighting Stanford to a standstill for two periods, Alabama's offense clicked and Jimmy Johnston, fullback, finally plunged over for a touchdown. Caldwell added the extra point for a tie.

Alabama's fortunes waned. For three years, old enemies in Dixie won. But in 1930 the last Wallace Wade coached eleven came through undefeated.

The stars were there—John (Hurry) Cain, a sophomore fullback who called signals; Ralph McKnight, a blocking back whose name appeared only in the lineups, never in the detail; John Henry Suther; Monk Campbell, ace of the spinner play; Fred Sington, an All-American tackle, and Captain "Foots" Clement, his running mate.

This starting team was backed by a second string eleven almost as strong defensively as the varsity. Instead of staging a spectacular rally to electrify the Bowl crowd, this eleven went to work and defeated Washington State, 24 to 0, going away.

In 1930, the 'Bama team was a power unit that went through undefeated. Today, it is speed, deception and split-second timing

But the stars shine as brightly in Alabama.

Acrobat Gridders in West Coast Classic.

The circus came to the stadium when these acrobatic Stanford and California gridders clashed in their annual game at Berkeley. California's whirling defense is shown trying to block Alustiza's punt without success. Stanford won the thrilling contest, 9 to 7.

STANFORD IN FOR PECK OF TROUBLE

Coast Champions Have Nothing Soft In Alabama.

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN.

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 1—(AP)—Western football fans who lay much store by their Rose Bowl defenders reviewed the situation today and suddenly realized that Stanford had invited itself a peck of trouble when it named Alabama as an opponent on New Year's day.

The Crimson Tide has yet to taste defeat in the Rose Bowl, after three appearances here.

Stanford has fared rather badly in the classic, losing twice, getting one tie and winning once by a single point.

Whether the present combination from Palo Alto is better than that which tied the 'Bama Boys, 7 to 7, in 1927 remains to be seen. And there is the pertinent question of whether the Crimson Tide is better, as it appears to be.

Certainly, Stanford will be seeking revenge. Almost to a man, the 1934 eleven is the same as that Columbia beat, 7 to 0, last year.

On the shoulders of Coach Tiny Thornhill's men also rests the job of trying to cut into the impressive list of wins southerners have piled up in the intersectional battle.

South Holds Edge.

The south boasts a three to one edge in games won and lost over the west in the 19-year-old event. The victories stand at one each for the west and middlewest, while the east is on the short end of a six to two count. Two of the south's wins were turned in by Alabama at the expense of Washington in 1926, 20 to 19, and Washington State, 24 to 0, in 1931. Georgia Tech beat California in the other game.

It has been pointed out frequently that the south has been more successful than other opponents because it is more accustomed to the warm weather encountered here at that time of year, yet this hardly accounts for the triumphs of Notre Dame, Columbia and Harvard and the 0 to 0 tie contest between Washington & Jefferson and California.

Injured Indians Will Be Ready.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 1—(INS)—Bobby Grayson, Stanford's great backfield star, will be in the lineup when the Cardinals clash on New Year's day in the Pasadena Rose bowl with the Crimson Tide of Alabama.

An X-ray revealed Grayson was suffering from torn cartilage between two lower ribs. Neither of the ribs was cracked, Dr. E. F. Roth, team physician, reported.

"Monk" Moscrip, Stanford's right end, likewise will be in the starting lineup. Moscrip is suffering from a sprained knee.

Coach Tiny Thornhill said the Cardinals will begin practice for the New Year's day classic Monday. He will stress a pass defense against the spectacular aerial attack of the Crimson Tide.

TOUCH FOOTBALL GAMES CANCELLED

All touch football games which were to have played Sunday have been cancelled, according to Saturday announcement at the city recreation office. The cold weather apparently would necessitate the second postponement in as many weeks and officials decided to abandon plans to determine a city champion by means of a play-off between winners and runners-up in the various leagues.

BOWLING

GREATER LINCOLN LEAGUE.

Liberty Life and Brown's Colts both topped the 2,900 mark in the Greater Lincoln league at the Lincoln Parlors Friday night, the Lifers taking team honors with 2,985, while the Colts' single game of 1,063 was high. Individually, Kossek's 633 was good for series tops and [illegible] single game of 265 was above the others. Brown's Colts won the odd game from Falstaff while [illegible] and Liberty Life won all three from Gr[illegible] Club and Eggers & O'Flying.

Honor Roll In Lincoln Loop

GREATER LINCOLN HONOR ROLL.

Ends—Gordon Elrod, Jackson; Jim Anderson, Jackson; Virgil Caulkins, Bethany; Leonard Walters, College View.

Tackles—Arnold Grabowski, Havelock; Dale Seligman, Jackson; Bob Bradley, Bethany; Clinton Brick, Cathedral.

Guards—Willard Beck, Bethany; Bobby Weckman, Havelock; Marion Marrow, College View; Edmund Steeves, Jackson.

Centers—Norris Williams, Bethany; Leo Benson, Lincoln Reserves.

Quarterbacks—Lee Jones, Havelock; Lucian McManus, Cathedral.

Halfbacks—Joe Malone, Cathedral; Eugene Miller, College View; Ed Helvey, Havelock; Mel Workman, Bethany.

Fullbacks—George Knight, Jackson, Johnny Staten, Bethany.

BY ALEX STODDARD.

Twenty-two stalwarts parading in gridiron togs of the six Greater Lincoln league member schools are given mention on The Star's 1934 loop honor roll, announced today. Bethany leads the list with six, while Jackson, league champion, and Havelock placed five and four, College View and Cathedral each landed three and Lincoln Reserves one.

Five gridders are repeaters from the 1933 honor roll—Grabowski of Havelock, Miller and Marrow of College View and Seligman and Knight of Jackson. Ted White, Bethany tackle, placed in 1933 but did not rank as high this season.

The ends were paced by Jackson high's adept duo, Gordon Elrod and Jim Anderson, both of whom were recognized as fine players both on offense and defense. Virgil Caulkins, Bethany, was called on to do much of the punting for the Maroons, while Leonard Walters, the College View string-bean, was a material factor in the southside team's success.

Leaders at Tackle.

Arnold Grabowski of Havelock and Dale Seligman of Jackson were the tackle leaders, the former being recognized as the defensive bulwark of Havelock's forward wall. Clinton Brick, Cathedral captain, turned in some fine performances, while Bob Bradley was a steady performer for Bethany.

The guards of 1934 were not up to former years, but Captain Willard Beck of Bethany topped the crop, with Bobby Weckman, Havelock pudge-ball, next in line. Ed Steeves, Jackson, was good offensively, while Marion Marrow, who played offensively in the College View backfield, headed the southside defense as a guard and tackle.

Centers, also, were none too classy. Norris Williams of Bethony and Leo Benson of the Lincoln Reserves were the only two to display "honor roll" calibre, Benson being promoted to the Lincoln first team as a sub after four league games had been played.

Lee Jones, Havelock signal-barker, and Lucian McManus, the Cathedral mite, headed the quarterbacks. McManus being particularly valuable to the Bluebird eleven.

Eugene Miller, a repeater from College View, was the ace among the halfbacks, but Joe Malone, Cathedral; Ed Helvey, Havelock, and Mel Workman, Bethany, were above the average. George "Bus" Knight, Jackson, was the number one fullback for the second successive year, with Johnny Staten of Bethany not far behind.

Mat Card Made Up For Tuesday Show

The card for the wrestling program at the 4-H arena next Tuesday was completed Saturday with the announcement that Jack O'Dell, Pueblo, and Mike Brendel, Austria, had been signed for the 30-minute, two-falls-out-of-three, semi-windup. Allen Eustace of Wakefield, Kas., and Jack Vincent of Kansas City have been contracted to tangle in the 20-minute preliminary.

O'Dell has appeared before Lincoln audiences numerous times, while Brendel has been here but once in recent months. Eustace formerly was a popular favorite, while Vincent has not appeared in Lincoln in a year.

The main event brings together Al Sparks, the big Utahan who dumped Heffner in the last show, and Smiling Steve Savage of Chicago. Should Sparks be able to pin Steve, he likely will be given a crack at John Pesek in the following show.

Bluffs Bout Postponed.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP) The wrestling match scheduled at Council Bluffs last night between John Pesek of Ravenna and Steve Savage, Chicago, was called off when icy streets and snow kept the fans home in large numbers. The bout will be held next Friday night. Only a few fans risked the icy streets to reach the city auditorium last night and Promoter Charley Loch refunded their money and tossed in a pair of exhibition bouts before sending everybody home.

Pete Suffredini, 132-pound scrub, who hasn't missed a practice session at Penn in three years and has played every game with the junior varsity team, has been awarded a varsity letter.

MEIER NAMED ON 3D ALL-AMERICA

Cornhusker Center Wins Special Award In Grid Sport.

Selection as center on the third team of the All-America nominations made by the Associated Press is the honor conferred on Franklin Meier, ex-Lincoln high boy who has worn Cornhusker moleskins at the University of Nebraska the past three years. Meier played the position at Nebraska for two campaigns, a worthy successor to Lawrence Ely, who was first team All-American center two years ago.

FRANKLIN MEIER

Included in the A. P.'s "Honorable Mention" list are six 1934 Cornhuskers — McDonald and Scherer, ends; Pflum, tackle; Bauer, quarterback; Cardwell, halfback, and Francis, fullback.

Fullback—Smukler, Temple.

GRIMM ALL SET FOR MORE SWAPS

Leader of Chicago Cubs Announces Desire To Resume Trading.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—(AP)—Charlie Grimm's campaign to tear the Chicago Cubs apart and put them back together with new parts, is not finished yet, if he can find someone willing to swap a good starting pitcher for Kiki Cuyler, or, if necessary, Woody English.

Grimm is pretty well satisfied with what he accomplished at the minor league meeting at Louisville last week, but still yearns for another starting hurler.

The Cub pilot won individual honors in trading at Louisville when he swapped Jim Weaver, Guy Bush and Babe Herman to Pittsburgh for Southpaw Larry French and Freddy Lindstrom, and Bud Tinning and Dick Ward to the world champion St. Louis Cardinals for Tex Carleton.

In Mood for More.

"We are pretty well set with Lon Warneke, Bill Lee, French Carleton for starters, but I still want to trade for another one.

"There are several teams that would like to have Cuyler, English or Stan Hack, and we might be able to make a deal with them. I don't want to give up English unless I absolutely have to. He can play three infield positions and I want to keep him for utility.

"We can let Cuyler go, as we have Chuck Klein, Tuck Stainback and Frank Demaree for our regular outfield next season, and it's hardly fair to expect a man of Cuyler's ability to sit on the bench most of the time."

Grimm hopes to make that deal during the major league meeting at New York Dec. 11.

Service Teams Line Up In Quaker City For Annual Strife

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1—(INS)—Somehow, the thing gets you. There they are, just 22 men down on the field, a great deal like any other 22 that might care to venture out before an admiring throng. One uses words very hurriedly in connection with the thirty-fifth annual Army-Navy game, largely, one suspects, because words are an extremely poor medium.

Glory and Gold Braid.

Color, glitter, glory. Gold braid and glittering adjective. Yes, the boys of both academies march. Yes, the heart-strings pull and the pulse mounts, because youth in uniform is high romance and, for one reason or other or none, the place goes crazy. That exactly is the case this afternoon.

Eighty thousand people, admirals in gold braid and generals in olive drab; mere people, cadets, middies, official Washington in the best possible show it can make. The president, Mr. Roosevelt, will not be there, but the secretaries of war and the navy will—and Philadelphia and its downtown hotel district was still echoing this morning to revelry by nightfall.

Meantime, the great cavalcade continued—cars, people, trains, everything, nothing, a great hurly-burly, the old, old scene and yet so eternally new.

Scoff at Raw Weather.

There's nothing like it. There never will be. For 44 years, it has been going on. Nothing can stop it. One might as well try to dam Niagara with a whisk-broom.

Even unpropitious or, in other words, very bad weather could not restrain this crowd. It has rained all week; it is cloudy and threatening today, with every chance that the day will be heavy and the field dank. Yet, if you had the money, you could buy seats at $9 for a single up to $100 for a double.

Yes, the place is crazy. But this is the thirty-fifth meeting of two terrific feudists and, by far, the best of all. The Navy, a maiden since 1921, has a great chance. It's supposed to win, in fact, although many hold that the rains of recent days give Army power and brawn an edge that the light Navy team can't hope to equal. I recall, however, that the same people who say this also hold that the Army would have beaten Illinois on a dry field.

Army Good, So Is Navy.

Therefore, one wonders whether this is the Army team they talk about or merely one for which they imagine things. It is a pretty good Army team. One can say the same for the Navy. Seldom is it given that two service football teams come up to their annual meeting on terms of such parity. The Navy has beaten Maryland, Columbia, Washington & Lee, Pennsylvania and Notre Dame, losing only to Pittsburgh. The Army, playing a rayon and dimiti schedule, has lost to Illinois and Notre Dame and has won only from the Marx Brothers.

The Notre Dame parallel is supposed to tell something, but it really doesn't. Nothing is established in this series, the idea being that the best of all Army teams can't beat the worst of all Navy teams by more than two touchdowns.

The series, for instance stands at 19 to 12 in victories for the Army, including three ties, the most notable of which was [illegible] 21 to 21 affair in Chicago eig[illegible] [illegible]ars ago.

Team Spirit At Its Peak.

It rained that day, too, just as it is supposed to rain today, but the Army, even with Cagle and Wilson, could not win. Today, it has the power, the weight and Jack Buckler's cut-back plays into the line. But today, just as was the case in 1926, it can only hope to equal the Navy's spirit. It can't better it.

As a matter of fact, it never could. The Army has mustered better football teams in the last dozen years. Yet what do the records show? In 1927, 14 to 9; then two years of a moratorium; in 1930, 6-0; in 1931, 17-7; in 1932, 20-0, and in 1933, 12 to 7.

These teams, in fewer words, do not play one-sided games, even when the strength is strictly on one side. You have to go all the way back to 1903, in fact, to find anything like that, the Army winning, 40 to 5, and that was not only a long time ago, but it doesn't take into account the Navy's spleen, which has been gathering over a long period of years. I have an idea that the big break is about due.

Ramblers Pull Away Monday For Coast

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Dec. 1—(INS)—Robinson and Melinkovich, center and halfback respectively, still were in the infirmary today as the Norte Dame football squad neared the completion of its drill here before entraining Monday for the Southern California game. Robinson and Melinkovich are recovering from injuries received in the Army game last week.

Coach Elmer Layden is stressing defensive drill, most of yesterday's session having been devoted to that department. One more day of practice remains before the Rambler squad leaves for the Pacific coast.

BOSTON FIGHTER HAS REAL PUNCH

Sammy Fuller Disposes of Johnny Jadick In Four Rounds.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Sammy Fuller, sturdy little Boston fighter who started an upheaval among New York boxing officials when he dropped a strange decision to young Peter Jackson a couple weeks ago, apparently has no intention of letting such things happen again.

Fuller put Jackson on the floor three times, but the judges called the decision against him. Last night, he came back and flattened Johnny Jadick, rangy Philadelphia welter, three times in one round and did it so thoroughly that he won on a technical knockout in the fourth round.

He hit Jadick so hard with a left that the thump of the Philadelphian's head on the canvas might have been a signal that it was all over. Jadick managed to get up twice, but the referee intervened as Fuller smashed him into the ropes.

Fuller, just too big to be a lightweight, weighed 138½; Jadick a quarter-pound less.

Eastern Fighter Easy Winner.

HOLLYWWOOD, Calif., Dec. 1—(INS) — Harry Serody, 138-pound battler from Philadelphia, won his first fight on the Pacific coast at the Hollywood Legion stadium last night when he administered a workmanlike beating to Gege Gravante, 139, of Los Angeles.

The Quaker City fighter had the better of the contest from the opening handshake until the final bell. In the ninth round, he had Gravante in such a bad way the crowd called to the referee to halt the affray. Gravante rallied, however, to finish the round.

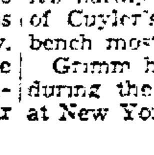

Serody was over-anxious in the tenth and missed several chances for a knockout.

Dakotans Set Pace In Bridge Tourney

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 1—(AP)—A team from Fargo, N. D., with 18½ points, was leading at the end of the first session of the regional bridge tournament which started here Friday to select a team to represent the eighth district in the national tournament of the United States Bridge association in January.

Jack Bowers, H. H. Strack, Don Murray and E. A. Engebretson comprise the Fargo team. In second place, with 17½ points, were Manning Handler, F. E. Watters, C. W. Martin and Morris Ferer, Omaha's team.

R. R. Reavill, A. B. Haroldson, Charles Oreckovsky and A. C. Hoene of Duluth, Minn., were third with 17 points. Fourth, with 14 points, were two St. Paul women, Mrs. T. F. Naughton and Mrs. R. E. Withy, who were teamed with two Omaha players. An all-Omaha team was fifth and low. One of the five teams will be eliminated today and the remaining four will engage in a "knockout" elimination, which will continue through Sunday.
